JAPAN SPIES IN LAKE COUNTY

Highland Park Residents Discover Jap Servants Have Inspected Ft. Sheridan

REPORTS CAUSE A BIG STIR

Nipponese Betrayed by Army Stride and Military Bearing—Many Said to Be Officers—Their Stay Short

Discovery that Japanese servants employed in the homes of wealthy residents of Highland Park have had military training in the army of their native land, has set the north shore wild with an alarm that Japanese spies had been caught within the confines of Fort Sheridan.

While the rumor that United States army officers had apprehended Nipponese spies proved unfounded, the agitation served to attract the attention of residents of exclusive residence towns near the fort to the actions of several Japs who have been employed as servants for more than a year.

Investigations developed the fact that several prominent business men who live near the military post have suspected the Japanese of conducting spying on Fort Sheridan and the methods employed in drilling the troops there.

One of these men is said to have become so aroused over the reports that Japanese army officers in the guise of book-store owners had settled in towns along the Ohio river where there are railroad bridges, that he expressed his fears in public. The rumor quickly spread, and now the whole north shore is talking about it.

Highland Park and Lake Forest residents who have become acquainted with the Japs have found, it is declared, that they have all served in the Japanese army.

One of the strongest indications that the Japanese are army officers in search of information about American military methods is said to be the fact that few Jap servants have remained near the fort for more than three months.

Most of the north shore Japs, it is said, have mannerisms and a bearing which are the unfailing marks of a military man, and which they cannot shake off. These Japanese servants have displayed the alacrity of getting "on step" which is only attributed to soldiers; it is declared, and many of them use the "goose step," a method of walking on long tramps, which the army officer uses more unconsciously than the man in the ranks.

Japanese army officers are said to have been recently at Wheeling, W. Va. Two of them, displaying diamonds and other evidences of wealth, and betraying their military training, are said to have appeared in Wheeling, ostensibly looking for a location for a book store.

Japs on the same mission are said to have appeared in other cities along the Ohio. The suspicion has been aroused that they were collecting data maps and information that would be indispensable for the campaign of an enemy in this country. It is also believed they plan to destroy big railroad bridges all over the country in case of war, to delay the transportation of troops.

The United States army post at Fort Sheridan, with the Columbus barracks, Ohio, and Fort Leavenworth, Kan., is among the largest army stations in the country. It is the biggest post on the great lakes. It has no fortifications, but offers great opportunities for the study of the American regular, the training he receives, and the equipment of the army. Its shooting range is used by the regiments of the Illinois militia.

Highland Park is a mile from Fort Sheridan. A deep woods connect the two places along the lake shore.

Before the war with Russia Japan sent army officers into Manchurian towns and cities and under different guises they secured information which was invaluable in the great campaigns of the struggle between the two countries.

Before and After.

"There is a great difference between the actions of a woman before and after marriage," remarked the sad-eyed man with the absent hair. "What's the answer?" queried the youth who was on the verge of graduating from a correspondence school. "Give a woman a five-dollar bunch of flowers before marriage," explained the party of the sad part, "and she will say: 'Oh, thank you, George! But, really, I cannot allow you to spend so much money on me.' After marriage when George hands her seven-eighths of his weekly salary she looks at it contemptuously and says: 'Is that all I get?'"

ANOTHER JUNE WEDDING

Miss Sarah Sheehan and Mr. William Waters Married on Monday.

Miss Sarah Sheehan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Sheehan of Loon Lake, was united in marriage on Monday morning of this week to Mr. William Waters of Chicago.

The ceremony took place at St. Peter's Catholic church in this village. The wedding was a quiet one, only the immediate relatives and a few intimate friends of the bride and groom being present.

After the ceremony at the church a bounteous wedding feast was served at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride is a well known, bright accomplished young lady who has spent the greater part of her life in this community and has a large circle of friends here who extend to her their best wishes for a long and happy life.

The groom, although a stranger here is an enterprising young man and stands high in the estimation of those who are daily associated with him.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Waters will return to Chicago where Mr. Waters is employed, and will make that place their future home.

The News unites with their many friends in extending to the happy couple best wishes for a bright and happy future.

CUNNINGHAM SWAMP TO BE DRAINED

Agitation which for some months has been under way, will, it seems almost certain, result in the formation of a drainage district and digging of a ditch which will drain the Cunningham swamp in Lake County.

Such powerful interests as the Swifts and Armours are behind the movement.

The Cunningham swamp, as it is known in Lake County, is just west of the Skokie, and extends from the Cook County line north to about the plank road. Its drainage will redeem hundreds of acres and enhance in value thousands of others. It will be one of the biggest improvements of the kind in recent years.

At Rondout the swamp covers an extensive area which all this spring has been submerged and has, therefore, attracted much attention and comment from passengers on the electric road to whose vision it appears a veritable lake at that point.

YOUTH DROWNED IN FOX RIVER NEAR CARY

Louis Petra, aged 24, was drowned in the Fox River near Cary Monday evening at 8 o'clock and his body was not recovered until 9 o'clock Tuesday morning.

Petra and two companions, Joseph Kryal and Rysa O'Krup, were swimming where the river is deep, one-half mile north of town, when the unfortunate youth remarked that he was going to dive. The other two saw him as he went into the water, but could not tell in the dark whether he came up. They swam ashore, and not hearing their companion, crossed back on the river to the place where he went down. They could not find him, and a searching party worked on the river all night without result. Tuesday morning he was found in deep water.

Petra was a stone mason and was unmarried. He had lived in Cary only a short time, and was not widely known in the vicinity.

FABLE OF THE PANSY.

Entire Family May Be Traced in Flower's Gay Petals.

Lovers of this pretty flower may be interested in the fable concerning it. The blossom has five petals and five sepals. In most pansies, especially of the earlier and less highly developed varieties, two of the petals are plain in color and three are gay. The two plain petals have a single sepal each, and the third, which is the largest of all, has two sepals. The fable is that the pansy represents a family, consisting of husband, wife and four daughters, two of the latter being step-children of the wife. The plain petals are the step-children, with only one child; the two small gay petals are the daughters, with a chair each, and the large gay petal is the wife, with two chairs. To find the father one must strip away the petals until the stamens and pistils are bare. They have a fanciful resemblance to an old man with a flannel wrap round his neck, his shoulders upraised and his feet in a bathtub. In France the pansy is universally called the step-mother.

Misunderstood.

Little Johnny was a tot of four years when he came running to his mother to ask her if his face was dirty. When told it was clean and why did he ask he replied that a lady said he had black eyes.

BOTTLING PLANT FOR ANTIOCH

A Meeting of the Dairymen of Antioch and Vicinity Called for Thursday Evening

WORK TO BEGIN AT ONCE

Mr. West of Elkhorn, Wis., is Promoter of the Project—Promises Higher Prices for Milk—Farmers Should Act

The dairymen of this vicinity are hereby requested to meet at the town hall in village of Antioch, on Thursday evening, June 27, for the purpose of giving an estimate as to the amount of milk each of the many dairies in this section can furnish to a bottling factory, and also to discuss the matter so that a thorough understanding may exist between the farmers and the company.

The above notice to the farming community means that a milk bottling factory is to be located at Antioch, and arrangements for the construction of the same will be commenced at once provided that a sufficient amount of milk can be procured to make the project a profitable one.

Mr. West, of Elkhorn, Wis., who has a large bottling plant at that place, was in town a few days ago and has expressed his willingness to purchase of the Farmers Creamery Association their creamery at this place, if satisfactory arrangements can be made for the construction of the bottling plant.

Mr. West also informs the president of the Business Men's Association, Mr. Wm. Westlake, that he is willing to pay a higher price for the milk received, than that paid by the Borden company at their condensing plants.

Should a plant of this kind be established here the Wisconsin Central railroad has agreed to furnish the train service necessary to place the product in Chicago in time for the early delivery to the city trade.

It is now up to farmers to decide the question as to whether they will still continue to dispose of their milk by shipping, as formerly, or whether they will be supplied with a market for their dairy product right here at home, and it is hoped that each and every farmer will be present at the meeting Thursday evening and be prepared to give an estimate as to the quantity of milk they can and will furnish.

Mr. West is a successful business man has had experience in this line of business and is financially responsible. And remember he does not ask one cent of any one to put the plant in running order, he only asks that he be furnished with a sufficient amount of milk to make the business a paying one.

The fact that Antioch is situated in the heart of an extensive dairying community makes it a desirable location for a bottling plant, and judging from the amount of milk that is daily being shipped from this locality it is safe to say that Mr. West will have no difficulty in securing the required amount to assure him of success.

THREE MEN NEARLY SWAMPED

Three foreigners had a close call to drowning in Lake Michigan off Waukegan Sunday afternoon and they owe their lives to the timely arrival of Robert Spoor in Nick Larson's gasoline launch Little Fort.

The fine day brought many people to the lake and every boat was out.

Suddenly about three o'clock a squall came up and many of the boats were in danger as it gave them no time to get to shore.

Among the number was a boat which three foreigners had rented. They were out about two miles from shore when the squall struck.

Mr. Larsen saw the boat was in danger and he sent Robert Spoor out in the gasoline boat after them. When he reached their side their row boat was half full of water and the men were on their knees praying as they had never prayed before. It developed that they had had three bottles of whiskey with them, but when they saw their danger, one of the first things they did was to throw the bottles overboard.

TAX SALE STOPPED BY AMES

Buy Property as It Comes or Sale Will Be Held Off Says Treasurer

SENSATION AT COURT HOUSE

By the Act of the Treasurer, Property Owners are Given More Time to Pay Their Taxes

Although County Treasurer Fred Ames is the youngest county officer Lake county has ever had, he showed the tax-buyers Monday morning that he is not to be dictated to when he takes a position which he believes is right. In other words, with the whole bunch of tax-buyers against him, with a few exceptions, he put it up to the buyers good and strong that he would not swerve from an important stand he had taken and gave them warning that he would keep adjourning the tax sale until they came to the realization that he would do what he said he would.

The tax sale opened and a number of pieces of property were sold in Benton township. The usual rule of taking towns in their order was followed and when he came to Spring Bluff addition (a defunct subdivision in Benton), the tax-buyers took a few lots and then refused to bid.

They stated that they had been told the board of review is to raise the valuation of lots and that, as the Spring Bluff lots are almost valueless, they did not care to bid in those lots, but wished the treasurer to skip them and come back later to them.

Mr. Ames at once told them he would not do this, that they must take things as they came or he would not continue the sale. They declined to bid, however, and he adjourned the sale shortly after one o'clock.

Mr. Ames stated that he would keep on doing this and compel the buyers to take the property as it came and in this way the property will be held open to the real owners much longer and they can go to the treasurer's office and pay their taxes. As a result, many pieces were paid for which would have been sold earlier in the day had the sale continued. By the putting off of the sale, Mr. Ames gives the tax-payers the benefit of it and tax-buyers are losing thereby.

"What Shall We Eat?"

Every day the same old question, "What shall we eat for breakfast, for luncheon, for dinner?" assails with monotonous regularity the patient housewife who seeks to provide good living for the family in agreeable variety at a moderate cost. The Chicago Record-Herald has gone far toward solving the problem by devoting space to three departments on this all important topic in its various issues. "Meals for a Day," which appears daily, gives the daily menu and the necessary recipes. Housewives everywhere are invited to participate in the contest and weekly prizes are offered for the best menu. Marion Harland's Sunday prize gives weekly a list of selected recipes which if clipped and pasted in a scrapbook make a most valuable collection. "Martha's Management," which appears on Monday, is filled with good advice and helpful hints to the housewife.

Canada Thistle Notice.

Notice is hereby given to all property owners, occupants or renters, in the town of Antioch, to cut all Canada Thistles and noxious weeds growing on their land or upon the highway along in front of their land, before allowing the same to mature seed, under penalty of the law as prescribed by the statutes of the state of Illinois.

Were Superstitious, Too.

A woman who takes her superstitions seriously started to enter a big department store one morning last week when she noticed a porter on a tall stroller that stretched directly across the doorway, says the New York Press. In spite of the fact that there were five women behind her eager to pass into the shop she came to a sudden halt, looked up at the ladder and cried out, "Oh, I'll never walk under that," saying which she turned and strode away. Before she had gone far her sense of humor rose superior to her fear of ladders, and she looked to see if her remark had had any effect on those who had been within sound of her voice. Walking directly behind her were the five women who had heard her exclamation.

FARM BUILDINGS BURNED

Old Green Home West of North Chicago in Ruins as Result of Sunday Fire.

At 11:30 o'clock Sunday, fire broke out and destroyed the farm house and other buildings on the A. F. McKeown farm west of North Chicago, entailing a loss of perhaps $15,000, covered by insurance to about one-third the value of the property.

The fire started in a small straw shed to the west of the main buildings and at the time, Fred Holst and wife, who run the place, together with Mr. McKeown, were on the place at the time and they did all they could to save the property, but without success.

The fire spread so rapidly that Mrs. Holst was unable to even go into the house to get $60 which she had placed under her pillow.

The wind was in the right direction to send the flames to the other buildings and soon the whole place was burning and efforts to check the flames proved futile, and the owner had to stand and watch his property go up in smoke.

When the flames had subsided it was found that, with the exception of a hen house and a corn crib, every building on the place, together with contents, including tools, etc., had been burned. The barn was a big one, the house being a moderate sized one. No stock was lost as all of the horses and cattle were out to pasture.

The strange part of the matter is that the origin of the fire is a profound mystery. Not a clue as to how it started has been obtained by Mr. McKeown, although he has made a careful inquiry. Mr. McKeown owns much farming land in the district and he will at once rebuild the buildings.

KENOSHA LINEMAN ELECTROCUTED

Charles Bipe, a lineman in the employ of the Wisconsin Telephone company, met an awful death at Kenosha Monday morning at the top of a thirty-foot pole by stepping on a feed wire of the Kenosha Gas and Electric company's system.

James Bartha, his helper, was terribly burned, but showed heroism in ascending to the top of the pole and holding the unconscious Bipe from falling until assistance came.

Bipe had called to Bartha, warning him of the presence of the live wire at about the moment that the latter grasped it with one hand. Bartha turned to ask Bipe for aid and discovered that the man had also come in contact with the wire, but in a manner more deadly than his own case, and was unconscious at the top of the pole. Despite his own bad injuries, he held the other's body until he could summon help. The shock had been too much for the man and he must have been almost instantly killed. He came from Lancaster, O., and was unmarried.

SMALL BOY TERRIBLY BITTEN ON FACE BY DOG

The 10-year-old son of Martin Bezinski of Fourteenth street, North Chicago, fought a bloody battle with a large dog belonging to S. Wujakush Sunday, as a result of which he may have to be taken to the Pasteur Institute in Chicago.

The boy is claimed to have gone into the yard of the man who owns the dog and tried to get a catcher's mitt for ball playing that lay on the porch.

The dog broke away from his fastenings and springing at the boy knocked him to the ground and worried his face, arms, neck and hands, all of which are bitten.

Chief Breen of North Chicago, shot the animal and the boy is receiving medical attention.

HIS DUTY AS HE SAW IT.

Had Been Told to Carry Out the Provisions, and He Wanted Them.

The widow of a village grocer was industriously piling the large, rosy cheeked apples on the top of the diminutive shirveled ones in the barrel when Farmer Giles entered the establishment, according to the Rochester Herald. "I want that tub o' butter," he said, "an' those hams, and that lot o' sugar, and—" The shopkeeper rubbed her hands together with delight. "Yes, sir," she beamed, "delighted to serve you, I'm sure. And what else may I supply you with?" "Well," went on Mr. Giles, "there's all them bottles of tomato sauce, and them boxes o' biscuits an'—an' all that other stuff," he concluded, vaguely, sweeping his hand around the shop. "Good gracious!" exclaimed the widow, now rather alarmed, "whatever do you want with all them goods?" "I dunno, I'm sure," was the farmer's puzzled reply, but I'm the executor of your late husband's will, an' the lawyer's just told me it's my duty to carry out the provisions. So come on, I've got three carts waitin' outside!"

NO HOPE FOR RACING

So Declares States Attorney Healy, if Betting is to Be Adjunct

OFFICIAL DEFINES THE LAW

Verbal Evidence Alone, He Claims, Would Be Sufficient to Convict the Offenders

"There will be no betting on horse races around Chicago while I am in this office." This was the statement made Tuesday by State's Attorney J. J. Healy, in reference to reports that meetings might be opened at some of the Chicago tracks. If wagering is to be an adjunct to the sport there is no hope for races there, he says.

Mr. Healy not only made this assertion, but he also said that attempts to evade the present law, by making wagers verbally, would result in prompt action. He said that a verbal wager would be a cause for action as much as a bet where a record was kept.

"Under the present law," he said, "wagering on horse races is prohibited. No specifications in the statute limit prosecution to bets where a ticket has been given or where a sheet is kept as record. This office could prosecute a man for making a bet 'on the nod,' as they say in England, just as effectively as if a ticket was given."

"There is no law against, or no objection to horse races, so far as I know. The question hinges on the wagering. Under the Percy-Gray law in New York, the use of a ticket is taken as evidence that a bet has been made or proof that the wager has been recorded must be adduced."

"Under the Illinois law, we do not need this material evidence. Of course, any such proof would make the case all the stronger, but we could collect evidence of verbal wagers to stop any betting which might be attempted."

Mr. Healy continued by saying that any testimony which showed directly or indirectly that betting was going on, could be followed up under the present law.

"The letter of the law in some places allows betting to be done in a furtive fashion, while supposedly prohibiting it," he said, "and in some of these cases the loophole of escape is large enough for betting to proceed unmolested under certain conditions—as, for instance, betting within the inclosures of a track sanctioned by the racing commission of New York State. Evidence required under its provisions must be far more material and positive than that needed under the law of Illinois."

"For instance, the term 'bookmaking' has been defined in some cases, under other laws, to mean wagering where a book was kept. It would be necessary to prove the existence of such a record to convict. Under the Illinois statute, it is not necessary to prove that a 'book' exists. The mere proof of a wager will be sufficient. A man may keep his 'book' in his head, but that will not free him from the penalties of the law."

"As I have said, there will be no wagering on horse races in Chicago."

WAGER IS MADE AS TO SOURCE OF FOX RIVER

Where is the source of Fox river? Now don't all answer Fox Lake, for that is wrong, says the Aurora News.

Two Aurora men have made a wager regarding the source of the Fox river. One bets it has its beginning in Fox Lake, while the other wagers that the source is 100 miles or more beyond the lake. They have wagered ten dollars each.

It has always been taken for granted that Fox Lake in Wisconsin is the source, but persons who have been through Wisconsin among the lakes near the boundary lines claim that the Fox river has its source in a small creek about 90 miles north of Fox Lake. They also contend that there are several lakes along the Fox river and that Fox Lake is only a part of the Fox river. It may not be known, even to everybody hereabouts, that Wisconsin has a Fox river, which flows in a northerly direction.

KIDNAPED BOY SLAIN

BODY OF NEW ORLEANS LAD IS FOUND IN A SWAMP.

SUSPECT TELLS OF CRIME

Says Italians Who Stole Lad Became Frightened and Strangled Him—Threats of Lynching Heard.

New Orleans.—Two miles in the interior of a big swamp near this city the headless body of Walter Lamana, an Italian child between seven and eight years old who was kidnapped and held for $5,000 ransom two weeks ago, was found by police and vigilantes just before daybreak, Sunday. He had been strangled to death, according to the confession of one of several Italians held by the police.

The boy's neck is supposed to have been broken when he was strangled, causing the head to become separated from the body when decomposition set in. The head was found a short distance from the body.

Five Italians, two of them women, are under arrest charged with being accomplices to the murder.

Seldom since the Mafia lynchings 16 years ago has New Orleans been so stirred with threats of violence and some of these threats are made by those who participated in the disorders at that time.

The murdered boy was found near St. Rose, about 20 miles from New Orleans. A sweating process wrung a confession from one of the Italian suspects who was taken from his home in St. Rose about midnight Saturday night and carried into the woods by a combined force of officials and vigilantes who had the search in charge. This man, Ignazio Campicelano, was kept in the woods an hour, when he confessed, charging four Italians with the murder. He said that about the time of a mass meeting in New Orleans more than a week ago, held for the purpose of prosecuting search for the boy, these men, who were in a vacant house in St. Rose, became frightened and consulted about what to do with the child.

The boy was crying, begging to be taken home to his parents, said Campicelano, and one of the quartette of the kidnapers grabbed the child and strangled him to death to stop his noise. Later two of the kidnapers, he said, came to him, carrying the body in a blanket, and after threatening him with death if he told, took the body into a swamp.

He went to the municipal court voluntarily and was admitted to bail in the sum of $5,000. In the schedule of assets of the defunct firm Smith was shown to be indebted to the firm to the extent of about $100,000.

TELEGRAPHERS QUIT WORK

STRIKE IN SAN FRANCISCO AND OAKLAND OFFICES.

Trouble Will Be Local So Long as Men Are Not Brought in from Outside Cities.

San Francisco.—Strike-ridden San Francisco had another strike added to the list Friday afternoon, when the telegraph operators employed by the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies left their keys at 3:30 o'clock and walked out of the offices here and at Oakland. Three short blasts from a police whistle gave the signal and at the sound the operators arose from the tables, put on their coats and quit their jobs.

The operators in San Francisco and Oakland were dissatisfied with the letter from President Clowry, of the Western Union, published Thursday, and insisted that their demands for a 25 per cent. increase in wages should be granted.

President Small, of the Commercial Telegraphers' union, arrived here Thursday and, after considering the situation, ordered the strike unless the increase was granted. Both the Western Union and Postal officials declined to grant the increase or to consult with the union. They expressed their willingness to consider and act upon any requests presented by their employees as individuals, but this has not satisfied the men and the walkout resulted.

So long as an attempt is not made to bring in operators from outside points the strike will be purely local. If, however, the company attempts to bring in outside men operators in other cities will be called out. In order that the strike may be confined to San Francisco and Oakland, it is announced that operators in other cities will be allowed to work with so-called "unfair" operators in San Francisco and Oakland who did not go out with the strikers.

The man for whom the police and troops vainly have been scouring the country for a fortnight, appeared without warning at the ministry of the interior. He was admitted to the presence of Clemenceau, with whom he had a 15 minute talk.

A semi-official account of the interview says that the premier used extremely strong language, virtually reproaching his visitor with the responsibility of all that has happened in the south. M. Albert is represented as having been overcome with contrition, bursting into tears and asking the premier how he could make atonement to which M. Clemenceau replied: "Give yourself up to the law and use your influence with your countrymen to return to lawful ways."

M. Albert left for the south at nine o'clock. Just before he left it was officially stated that he had promised M. Clemenceau to do his utmost to induce his countrymen to return to work and to cease their disturbances.

DES MOINES TO TRY NEW PLAN.

Adopts Modification of Commission System of Government.

Des Moines, Ia.—By an overwhelming majority the citizens of Des Moines Thursday adopted what is known as the Des Moines plan of government, a modification of the commission form of government, adopted some years ago in Galveston, Tex.

The new plan provides for an elimination of the ward system, with its aldermen, mayor and other elective officers, and the election by the city as a whole of five commissioners, all of whom shall give their entire time to city affairs, one as mayor and the other four as heads of department. All other offices are made appointive.

CHILD ARRESTED AS FIREBUG.

Seven-Year-Old Boy Accused of Burning Two Houses.

Parkersburg, W. Va.—Clyde Glidden, aged seven years, has been arrested and placed in jail on a charge of incendiarism. It being alleged that he burned two houses a week ago. The houses were occupied and the families barely escaped with their lives. The penalty for the crime of which the boy is charged in this state is death unless the jury recommends mercy, and then it is life imprisonment. J. D. Cullip, owner of the destroyed houses, alleges that young Glidden burned them because he had been ordered to stay out of Cullip's garden.

LITTLE CAUSE FOR WORRY.

More or Less Glittering Bait Held Out to Cow Punchers.

Over in the Salmon river meadows country, in Idaho, ranged a wild and woolly bunch of long-haired cow punchers, whose knowledge of the world was confined mainly to trips after cattle into surrounding counties. Into this reckless but verdant community there came the smooth-tongued representative of a wild west show, who hired several riders at a high salary to do a hair-raising act, the chief feature being that they should appear to be thrown from their horses and dragged by the foot.

After they had practiced in a corral for a while one of them loosened himself and rising from the dirt, disheveled and dazed, inquired:

"Say, mister, ain't this rather dangerous? We might get killed."

"That's all right," chirped the show's representative cheerfully. "Your salary will go on just the same."—Lippincott's Magazine.

THE REORGANIZED NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

The new Board of Trustees of the New York Life Insurance Company, chosen by the policyholders under the Armstrong laws, has taken charge of the company's affairs and has begun the work of reorganization.

In choosing the principal officers of the company, the Board has adhered to the idea that a life insurance company should be managed by life insurance men. The new president is Darwin P. Kingsley, a college bred man of good New England stock, who has been in the company's service in a variety of capacities for a period of nearly twenty years. In the parlance of life insurance, he "began with the rate book" and has advanced step by step up to his present position.

The first vice president of the company is Thomas A. Buckner, who has served the company for more than a quarter of a century,—indeed has never had any other business connection.

Associated with these men are others long trained in the company's service, each an expert in his own department of work. Wm. E. Ingersoll, who has for many years had charge of the company's great business in Europe, is one of the second vice presidents, and will continue at the head of the company's office in Paris.

Rufus W. Weeks, who has been in the company's service for nearly forty years, ranks next to Mr. Buckner as vice president, and continues as chief actuary of the company.

The policyholders have expressed their belief in this company in no uncertain terms. The upheaval in life insurance within the last two years has resulted in a great deal of misunderstanding and policyholders, alarmed on matters which were not very clear to them, have been disposed to give up their contracts at a heavy sacrifice. This has not been true in the New York Life to any great extent. The company had $2,000,000,000 insurance on its books when the life insurance investigation began, and while the laws of the State of New York now do not permit any company to write over $150,000,000 a year (which is about one-half the New York Life formerly did), the company's outstanding business still exceeds $2,000,000,000.

Policyholders generally will be still further reassured by this action of the Board, as it places at the head of the company to protect their interests men of thorough training and unexceptionable character.

The Mules Understood.

A story is told of Senator Knute Nelson, who spent some of his early years in a logging camp. He there discovered the necessity of certain emphatic language in order to make mules move. "All varieties of tongues were in demand in that camp," Scandinavian, German, Italian—but none of the words used seemed to have the explosive force to adjust the tempo of the mule to the desired pace. Along came a strapping Irishman, who used some popular epithets, usually indicated in print by blank, blank, or—The mules moved! "There's a language all mules understand," said the Irishman, "and it's not me-mother tongue, ayther."—Joe Mitchell Chapple, in National Magazine.

Satisfied.

A seedy-looking loafer, having ordered and eaten a large and sumptuous dinner, explained to the waiter that he had no money.

The waiter immediately told the restaurant proprietor, who sent for a policeman.

The proprietor, going up to the unwelcome guest, explained that he had sent for a policeman.

"Thank goodness! you didn't send for a stomach pump!" the seedy one replied, with huge contentment.—Illustrated Bits.

Good for Evil.

One Sunday a teacher was trying to illustrate to her small scholars the lesson, "Return good for evil." To make it practical she said:

"Suppose, children, one of your schoolmates should strike you, and the next day you should bring him an apple—that would be one way of returning good for evil."

To her dismay one of the little girls spoke up quickly: "Then he would strike you again to get another apple!"

EIGHT MEN DIE IN COLLISION

FORTY ARE INJURED, OF WHOM TWO CANNOT RECOVER.

Workmen Perish When Passenger Train Smashes Into Their Cars at Hartford, Conn.

Hartford, Conn.—Eight workmen were killed and 35 injured when a passenger train on the Highland division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad crashed into the rear of a work train that was backing into the city from New Britain Sunday night at the Sigourney street crossing. Of the injured two probably will die.

The engineer of the work train claims that he had the right of way and his statements are borne out by others on this train. Engineer Wilson of the passenger train jumped in time to escape injury. The passengers, however, were badly shaken up and some were cut by flying glass. An express train passed on an adjoining track soon after the accident and side swiped the wreckage.

There was much danger because the wrecked cars had to be maintained in an upright position by stays while the rescuers were underneath battling to save the lives of those caught in the wreckage. During the excitement fire broke out. After quenching the flames firemen became rescuers and with axes and saws worked until the arrival of a squad of 50 railroad wreckers. Half a dozen priests administered the last rites to some of the sufferers. Soon after the wreck one man underneath several tons of debris was seen waving a red flag.

Some one reached him a bottle of whisky and gave him a draught. He remarked: "The first drink in 12 years, and God knows I need it." Rochester, N. Y.—Four persons were killed, three more are thought to be fatally hurt and eight were badly injured in a wreck Sunday night about a mile east of Pittsford, on the Auburn branch of the New York Central railroad. The train was No. 230 going east. It met a freight head on.

WOLLER GIVEN THREE YEARS.

Milwaukee Embroider Is Sentenced by His Bosom Friend.

Milwaukee.—Frank E. Woller, for 18 years clerk of the municipal court of this city, was Friday evening brought into the court of which he had been an official so long, pleading guilty before his bosom friend, Judge Brazee, of embezzlement of $30,000, and was sentenced to three years at hard labor in the Milwaukee house of correction.

The scene in court was sad in the extreme. Many attorneys pleaded with the court for a lenient sentence. The prosecutor did not suggest a measure of punishment further than to insist that justice be meted out. Judge Brazee said that duty alone prevented him from calling in another judge to sit in the case. He was almost overcome as he pronounced the sentence.

FRENCH CABINET UPHELD.

Government Given Vote of Confidence by Deputies.

Paris.—By a majority of 104 the chamber of deputies Friday afternoon voted confidence in the government and gave the ministers a free hand to establish the sovereignty of the law in the disturbed departments of the south.

This result came after a day of excitement over the mutinous movement of troops in the south, following the widespread disorders of the wine-growers.

The grave view the French capital takes of the revolutionary events in the south of France and the tragic outcome was evidenced by the scene in the chamber of deputies when the government was interpellated on the measures it proposed to take to re-establish order. Even standing room was not obtainable and many women listened to the debate, which at times was superheated.

Premier Clemenceau lost no time in imparting to the deputies the news from Narbonne adding to the information already published the fact that over a hundred soldiers were wounded in the fighting Thursday with the rioters. The latter, he said, had disappeared from the streets. The peasants from the surrounding villages, terrified at the shooting, took the first trains for their homes.

GOV. JOHNSON FOR PRESIDENT.

Candidate of Minnesota Democrats, Says His Private Secretary.

Omaha.—"We hear a great deal of Mr. Bryan as the next Democratic nominee for president, but I want to tell you now that Minnesota will have a word to say about this; Minnesota will have a man before the next national convention in the person of Gov. John J. Johnson. He is a candidate, has strength and will continue to develop more strength until the convention meets when he will go before it a formidable candidate."

This statement was made here Sunday by Frank A. Day, private secretary of Gov. Johnson, who was en route to St. Paul from the Pacific coast. Seck met Dr. Addison G. Porter, the girl's employer, on the street and cowhided him with a blacksnake whip. He had only struck six blows when he lost his balance and fell. Dr. Porter seized the whip with the assistance of the girl and beat Seck severely.

PURELY FEMININE

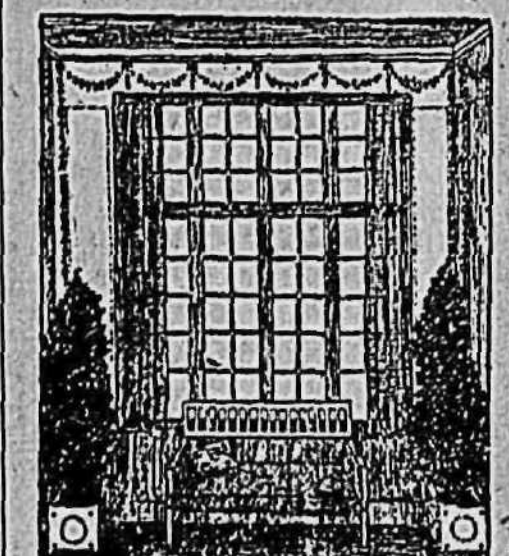

SIMPLICITY IN HOME

KEYNOTE OF THE MOST EFFECTIVE DECORATIONS.

Over-Elaboration in Any Form Is Always a Mistake—Proper Way to Hang Pictures, Curtains and Draperies.

Although the majority of home-builders and home-makers are tending toward simplicity and good taste in house decorations, one still sees in a great many homes heavy stuffed draperies, inartistic furniture and poor taste in pictures and other decorations.

A merciless elimination should be the first step toward decorating a room in good taste; perhaps the room should be cleared absolutely. Then the solid color backgrounds should be arranged next, the effects striven for being extremely plain in floor, wall and ceiling, selecting light and harmonious tones. Drape the windows so as to exclude as little light as possible, and then begin to carefully decorate the agreeable flat surfaces, one of the main ideas of the new straight-line style being to keep the surfaces flat. Not only should all the pictures be decorative in line and coloring themselves, but they should be framed with extreme simplicity in narrow wood molding, some frames rectangular, some few round or oval, to give a sense of diversity in line. They should be hung perfectly flat against the wall, suspended from the molding by one thin wire of as near as possible the color of the wall paper.

Curtains and other draperies should always be hung in straight lines, and never draped, and should be used only when absolutely necessary. A tardy recognition is being given to the beauty of the straight line, and that is why the gilded and curved furniture is going out and the mission and "new art" styles coming in. As few cushions as possible consistent with comfort should be used, and the upholstery should be extremely simple.

In the accompanying picture of an alcove a delightful and dignified effect was gained by the introduction of two formal plants in pottery jars. The large and peculiarly paneled window gave an abundance of light, which was toned and shaded by the thin green mesh curtains. The color scheme of the alcove was soft gray, green or gold, and was faithfully carried out in the details of the decoration.

Piques in Many Forms.

One can pay $2.50 per yard for a French pique, or get something modest and pretty for 12 1/2 cents. The finer varieties are not made in jumpers or styles like the cheaper fabrics, but are more often seen in lovely little jacket suits. The cutaway with long sleeves is a stylish model for a white pique and can be made extremely beautiful. Like most dresses of its kind it looks best when trimmed with stitched bands and embroidered buttons. The little lapels, collar and cuffs are neat with white embroidery. Many of the pique skirts have the tailored effects. Few, if any, are trimmed unless, perhaps, bands of like material are used and stitched down the seams. This suit is always worn with a very sheer waist.

French Atomizers.

Fortunes are fashionable again, although anything but a delicate odor strictly is tabooed by refined and conservative women. Only a small quantity is permissible, and the French pump atomizer is the most satisfactory contrivance for obtaining an equal distribution of perfume. An extremely attractive style is made of blue Austrian glass, which is rich in color and slightly iridescent and is decorated with silver deposit, artistically engraved. The top is of plain polished silver. Another handsome atomizer is made of cut glass with an engraved silver top. A new French novelty is small enough to fit in the shopping bag.

Corset Laces in Boys' Blouses. Use rubber corset laces in place of type of elastic in boys' blouses or bloomers.

PROPER WAY TO CLEAN RUGS.

Those of Expensive Material Need Most Careful Handling.

Cleaning rugs—especially the antique ones that cost hundreds of dollars, really is a science, and housewives possessing any of these much-valued floor coverings should remember it when having their spring cleaning done. The mistake of brushing with a stiff broom against the grain should never be made, and, if necessary to prevent this, mistresses personally should superintend this work, for going against the weave takes off the silky nap and loosens the threads that bind the material together. Neither should they ever be shaken by one end or in the center to free them from dust and dirt, for this is apt to loosen the weave. Pounding them with the regulation rattan rug beater makes for destruction and never should be permitted. The only thing I know of to take the surface dirt from fine, thin old coverings is a thorough brushing or whisking with a strong but soft bristle brush, working always with the grain. After this partial cleaning a damp cloth can be stroked across the top to give a brightness to the colors.

Once or twice a year a genuine old-fashioned scrubbing will freshen the colors. But I would suggest that this be done by an experienced person who will do it by hand, for modern processes often ruin thin fabrics, and once the weave is loosened and the covering begins to come apart the rug is of really little use for any practical wear. Once the dirt is blown out the rest is comparatively easy, for it consists of a simple washing—scrubbing, rather, with cold water and castle or pure white soap, one that has little lye in its composition, for, although the colors are all the best vegetable dyes in these fine rugs, and should never run, any but a pure soap should not be used on them.

Wear Flets in Hair.

The summer girl should adopt the fashion of wearing ribbon flets in the hair during the morning. A smooth, full pompadour is made and the hair moistened a trifle if it does not wave readily. Then two bands of ribbon are fastened snugly around it, the first being an even distance from the edge of the hair all around and the second parallel to the first and between it and the knot. Pull out the hair outside and between the flets. This makes a pretty and neat arrangement for morning, and when one dresses for the afternoon, it is necessary only to remove the ribbons and fluff out the pompadour with a comb. It will lie in pretty waves. This is a particularly good way to achieve the wavy coiffure now so fashionable, for it is beyond doubt the least harmful to the hair. In fact, it cannot do it the least injury if carefully done.

GOOD IN MANY MATERIALS.

Cotton, Muslin, or Thin Silk Suitable for Little Girl's Frock.

There are any number of pretty cotton materials suitable for a little frock of this description; it also makes up daintily in muslin or thin silk for wearing over colored underslips. It is much gored, fitting the yoke in the upper part without fullness, but falling in ample fullness in the skirt part.

The pointed yoke is composed of rows of Valenciennes lace insertion joined together; below this incisions are cut in the frock and button-holed round, then a soft ribbon sash is threaded through and ties in a short bow at the back, giving it the appearance of an Empire style.

Short puffed sleeves gathered into very narrow bands trimmed with lace. The foot of frock is trimmed with three frills of Valenciennes lace sewn on about three inches apart.

Materials required: Two and one-half yards 36 inches wide, two and one-quarter yards insertion, and about nine and one-half yards lace.

Our Springfield Letter

Special Correspondent Writes of Things of Interest at the State Capital.

Springfield.—All railroads in the state of Illinois will accept the new two-cent fare passenger law passed by the forty-fifth general assembly and will attempt to comply with its provisions. This intelligence was disseminated from Chicago where representatives of the big systems operating in this state have been conferring for some time on the proposition. The decision was made following the opinion given by the Missouri courts on the law in that state. The matter of fighting the law was thoroughly discussed and many of the railroad men were of the opinion that it contained a number of "blowholes" because of which it might be killed in the courts. There was a wide divergence of opinion, however, as many other equally influential officials were of the opinion that the law would actually prove a benefit because of the clause which compels all passengers to purchase tickets if they desire to receive the benefit of the two-cent rate. It is almost needless to say that the latter officials all represented the larger lines who will not be as seriously affected by the new law as the smaller systems. From reports of the conferences which have been in progress, it has been decided to accept the law which goes into effect on July 1, next, for three months. At the end of that time the magnates believe that they can judge better whether it is still profitable to operate under it, and if not, will attack it through the courts.

Court Unable to Agree.

Disappointment was general among the politicians, lawyers and other persons especially interested in the primary election law when it was learned that the supreme court had adjourned to court in course without handing down a decision upon the constitutionality of the primary election law. The case has been under consideration by the court several months. A decision was expected at the April term, but was not forthcoming. When that term was adjourned without the disposition of the case, it was generally expected that the court's opinion would be made public at the June term. The supreme court seldom hands down an opinion during vacation. Consequently, it appears probable that this important case will not be disposed of until next October, when the next term of the court will be held. It was hoped that the court's decision would be made public before the legislature is reconvened after its recess, in October, so that the law makers might formulate a new act in event this one is declared invalid. The failure of the court to hand down an opinion in this case is taken by some to strengthen the persistent rumor that the members of the tribunal are unable to agree upon an opinion. Until Judge Dunn was seated, an even number of justices sat upon the bench, so that a tie would have prevented a decision.

To Examine Insurance Companies.

Arrangements are making by the Illinois Insurance department for the examination of fraternal beneficiary societies doing business in Illinois. The recent legislature passed a law providing that the state insurance department may examine these companies once every two years or oftener, if deemed necessary, the expense of such examination to be met by the fraternal society except the per diem of the examiners. Under the law heretofore existing the department has had power to conduct these examinations, but unless they were asked for by the societies the expense had to be met by the state. Superintendent Potter expects to make an examination of each of the 134 fraternal societies licensed to do business in the state within the next two years. Of this number only 44 are foreign societies. The law permits the superintendent to accept the report upon examinations conducted by the state authorities in their home states if he desires.

To Celebrate Great Debate.

Plans for a semi-centennial celebration of the Lincoln-Douglas debates were decided upon for next year by the board of directors of the State Historical society. Men of prominence will be selected to speak, representing Lincoln and Douglas, in the towns in which the historic debates were held. Horace White, of New York, who is thought to be the only person living who in any way actually participated in that debate, will be invited to represent Lincoln, while Adlai E. Stevenson, of Bloomington, will be invited to represent Douglas.

Illinois Central Loses Point.

Another prop of the Illinois Central railroad company's fight against paying to the state the back taxes alleged to be due was knocked out when Auditor of Public Accounts McCullough gave his written permission to Attorney General Stand to file the suit against the Illinois Central to recover the back taxes. The Central had raised the point at the hearing of the case in the La Salle county circuit court that the case could only be prosecuted by the consent of the auditor.

Repair Lincoln Home.

The work of repairing the Lincoln homestead on South Eighth street is going on. A number of the bricks in the foundation have become decayed and the wooden sills on the foundation have so rotted, that the building became in a dangerous condition. In consequence of this fact the legislature at its last session made an appropriation for repairing the building. New guttering work will be made and plastering will be done on the interior of the house. The wooden sills were of oak and black walnut and have laid there since 1839 when the house was built. Those in care of the home have been so annoyed lately with persons seeking to get relics of old wood used in the house that all of the valuable material had to be placed in the cellar. A new fence will be constructed, but will be just like the old one and when available all of the material fit for use will be utilized. The north cornice of the house will also be repaired, as the water now leaks through and damages the plaster. It is stated by those in charge that the least amount of wind would rock the house.

Railroad's Objections Sustained.

Judge Murray in the county court sustained objections filed by the Chicago, Peoria & St. Louis railroad to the levying of a tax of 20 cents on every $100 of valuation of the company's road and bridge property in Springfield and Williams township. The objections were sustained on the ground that the levy calls for an assessment of 20 cents on each $100 worth of property owned by the company, and that it is simply stated that this money will be put into the "contingency fund" without making any definite statement as to the public use to which the fund will be put. The matter is a comparatively small item, and means little either to the treasury of Sangamon county or to the railroad company. The objections were purely technical and it was upon these grounds that they were sustained. The same objections were filed by the Illinois Central Railroad company for the taxation of its railroad and bridge property in Loomis, Springfield and Williams townships, and these, also, were sustained by the court.

Good Wheat Crop in State.

In their present condition the wheat fields of Illinois promises to give a larger yield this summer than they have for many seasons past, and since the harvest is so near at hand it would seem that nothing can now interfere with this promised end. The crop has headed out unusually heavy, the grains are large and the straw itself will be a big crop. Farmers say it has been a long time since wheat has grown as tall as it has this year. Nothing remains unfinished but the ripening, and with continued hot weather this will come almost before the farmers are ready to harvest the grain. With the exception of a few of the counties in the southern part of the state, which are becoming the wheat belt of Illinois, the acreage is announced as normal, though in the counties spoken of it is much greater than in former years. Between Springfield and Girard, along the line of the Interurban, there are several fields, and all of them look as though this crop will be the paying one of the year, the acreage sown considered.

To Dedicate Old Site.

Speaker Joseph Cannon, Gov. Charles S. Deneen and former Gov. Richard Yates will be invited to speak at the dedication of the site where Owen Lovejoy delivered his famous address in 1860. A committee composed of C. J. Doyle, H. S. Russell and H. C. White, of Greenfield, came to Springfield and extended an invitation to Gov. Deneen and former Gov. Yates. They then journeyed to Danville to invite Speaker Cannon. The spot where Owen Lovejoy delivered the address which is now a part of history, is located at the intersection of Greene, Jersey and Macoupin counties. The celebration will be held July 24. A cannon that was hauled from Springfield to the camping ground is sought by the committee in charge of the affair, and the older residents of Springfield will be asked regarding its present location.

Want Suspect Brought Back.

Gov. Deneen issued a requisition on the governor of New York for the return to Chicago of Stuart B. Wilkins, wanted in that city on a charge of working a confidence game. Wilkins is accused of having cashed a worthless check.

Life Companies Consolidate.

Policy holders of the Sterling Life Insurance company, of Springfield, have received notice of its consolidation with the Federal Mutual Endowment company, of Chicago. All risks assumed by the Sterling company have been transferred to the Federal and the latter agrees to assume all the outstanding liabilities. The Sterling company was organized by local capitalists several years ago and has since been doing business with main offices in Springfield.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Latest reports from Ohio indicate that Boss Cox's peace balloon is losing gas rapidly.

One would think from the fuss the Japs are making that they had already been excluded from this country.

Richard Croker is coming home to vote, and doubtless will follow the time honored Tammany custom of "early and often."

Since the Japanese of the Pacific coast have been denied the right of citizenship, they are doing their best to get even by establishing a labor union.

Col. Bryan says he is not going to hatch any more new campaign ideas till he can be sure of securing a copyright that will keep the republican party from appropriating them.

It is reported from Boise City, Idaho, that "Steve" Adams refused to take the oath as a witness in the Haywood murder trial. Considering the small number of people who would believe Steve even under oath, the recalcitrance really would not seem to matter much.

An Oregon man has just been jailed for stealing a whole railroad train. It seems a pity to bottle up such a promising amateur. He might have gone further and settled in Wall Street where he would have learned how to steal a whole railroad and not get pinched for it either.

"Bat" Masterson has written a treatise on the ethics of gun carrying under title of "How and When to Carry a Six Shooter." While Mr. Masterson doubtless is an authority on revolver etiquette, we should think his treatise might be condensed for busy readers into the single word "Don't."

An interesting feature of the railroad rate situation was made public by the Interstate Commerce Commission when it was announced that the Canadian government had decided to adopt the system of railroad bookkeeping and accounting approved by the United States, and thus have a uniform system for practically the whole of this continent. The new system will go into effect on July 1st of this year. It provides for the books that shall be kept by the railroads showing the items of receipts and expenditures, the disbursements for operating expenses including leases, betterments and the depreciation of property. The law further provides that not only shall this set of books be kept, but that none others shall be kept, so that the whole of the railroad finances will be open to government inspection just as much as the accounts of a national bank are to the bank examiners of the Treasury. This is as it should be. The railroads are public service corporations, and the people have a right to know just how they stand financially. If their financial transactions are all open and aboveboard, there will not be much need to bother about government control. Public opinion will do all that is necessary in the way of keeping them straight.

The Department of State is having a few troubles of its own in the line of Japanese negotiations and Canadian fishing controversies and the prospect of political upheavals in Central America. But it can spare time to smile at the situation that Europe finds itself in with the Hague Conference. As everyone knows, the first Hague conference was called by the Czar of Russia, and the prominent feature of the discussion was the reduction of armaments. There was nothing done, and by the time that the next meeting of the conference was due, Russia was so deep in a war with Japan that the conference was not called at all. Then the United States suggested a renewal of the conference, but the sky being clear for the time, took a back seat as a matter of courtesy and allowed Russia to issue the formal call. Now, just as the conference is assembling, the situation in Russia changes so much for the worse, that it looks as though the Czar might have a revolution at home and a peace conference abroad both on their hands at the same time. It is needless to say that the reduction of armaments, which all the European powers are afraid to discuss, will be given scant consideration at the present meeting. The mere fact that Russia is busy with so much trouble at home probably will prevent the present meeting from amounting to much.

Old soldiers all over the country can feel a real interest in the action of the Interior Department in disbaring one firm of pension attorneys from practice and instituting proceedings against several others. The trouble was speculated on the part of the pension sharks in land bounty script. This script is issued to all soldiers and their widows and heirs who participated in any American war back of 1855. There are a surprising number of these soldiers and their descendants in the country who have never applied for their land bounty. The pension firms in question made a practice of looking up these old claims and notifying the beneficiaries so that the claims could be pushed through, the attorneys, of course, getting the regular fee for the work. But then it was the habit of many of the attorneys to buy the land script from the successful claimant at an average of $1.25 per acre, the claims were for 160 acres, and sell the script to some outsider, often as high as from five to ten dollars per acre. Most of the old land claimants did not even know that they were being robbed, for that was what it amounted to. But Secretary Garfield took the matter up and now one firm has been disbarred from practice and others are trembling. Of course, it is a good thing to protect the pensioners from graft, but the beauty of the incident from a public viewpoint is that it indicates the Interior Department is going to be run on a more honest and business like basis than formerly.

The Centaurs.
The fable that the Centaurs were half man and half horse, like many other old myths, had its origin in reality. It grew out of the horseback riding habit of the Thessalians. People who had never seen a horse before took the horse and the man for one being. That is what the American Indians thought when they first saw the Spaniards on horseback.

Remarkable Rescue.
That truth is stranger than fiction, has once more been demonstrated in the little town of Fedora, Tenn., the residence of C. V. Pepper. He writes, I was in bed entirely disabled with hemorrhages of the lungs and throat. Doctors failed to help me, and all help had fled when I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery. Then instant relief came. The coughing soon ceased the bleeding diminished rapidly, and in three weeks I was able to go to work. Guaranteed cure for coughs and colds. 50 and $1.00 at J. H. Swan's drug store. Trial bottle free.

New Idea of Gentleman.
A new definition of a gentleman was given at the Lymington (England) county court recently, when the registrar asked: "What is the defendant?" "He's a gentleman," replied the plaintiff. "How do you define a gentleman?" the registrar asked. "Well, he came here and took a big house, and went away without paying his creditors," was the reply.

The big factory which the Borden's have built at Bassett is approaching completion. A force of men have been busily engaged and now about all the work on the building is completed and the machinery is being installed. On one side of the building an elevated roadway has been constructed so that milk can be unloaded to the upper story of the building. On the other side an excavation is being made for a small lake from which the ice for use at the factory will be secured. The building is a fine one and has been put up regardless of expense.

An Ambassador's Butler.
The practice of tipping is not entirely bad; the recipients at least derive some benefit. A former butler of Mr. Choate, American ambassador to England before Mr. Keld, has built a large hotel on the coast on the tips he received from visitors to the American embassy, whose servants make more money than those attached to other embassies, chiefly because of the number of wealthy Americans who visit the ambassador and scatter tips with traditional generosity.

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach and all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach. Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfect, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatism blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. Purity and Cleanliness

Cleanliness is necessary for purity in foods, and especially in beer. No one realizes this important fact more than Pabst. In the great Pabst Brewery at Milwaukee, everything is as neat and clean as in your own kitchen. Every grain of barley is washed and scoured before it is made into malt. Even the air in which the malt is grown is washed by being drawn through fourteen zinc screens, over each of which flows a constant stream of pure water. The great shining copper brew-kettles are washed and sterilized before each brew of

The Beer of Quality

From the time the beer is brewed until it is delivered to your home it never comes in contact with the atmosphere nor with human hands. Before it is bottled, Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is forced through wood fiber filters. The bottles are thoroughly cleaned, then filled and pasteurized. Pabst cleanliness, like Pabst purity, cannot be excelled.

SUPPLEMENT THE ANTIOCH NEWS

ANTIOCH, ILLINOIS, THURSDAY, JUNE 27, 1907.

THRONE OF PORTUGAL IS TOTTERING

LATTER IS MOBBED
BY A LISBON CROWD.

Troops Are Called Out and Ball Cartridges Scatter the Temptuous and Fighting Rabbles.—The Details.

Madrid, June 24.—The latest word from Lisbon seems to indicate that Premier Franco will resign. The movement against him has now spread over the whole country, and it is reported that he will be succeeded by a coalition ministry headed by the Independent Villhena.

Paris, June 24.—Not only is France undergoing the strain of incipient revolution; Portugal is also experiencing a similar trouble, but the censorship of the press at Lisbon is so strict that the latest news from there is by letter and no later than the 20th. King Carlos some time ago dissolved parliament because that body would not from his point of view adopt certain reforms. Since then he has been running the country by royal decree, but the master mind in the policy is alleged to be Premier Franco. The public had been growing restless for several days, and now comes the news that an outbreak at Lisbon resulted in much bloodshed.

Premier Franco Is Mobbed. The trouble broke out June 19th and continued on June 20th. Upon Premier Franco's return to the capital his carriage was surrounded by a mob and he was looted and jeered. Cavalry had to be called out to disperse the mob, which met the charges with revolver shots. The rioters raided the cafes, armed themselves with improvised bludgeons formed of iron and marble portions of the tables, bottles, etc., and fiercely attacked the police and troops. The latter fired several volleys. Two of the rioters were killed and over a hundred were wounded, six of them sustaining mortal injuries.

King Carlos of Portugal. The rioters raided the cafes, armed themselves with improvised bludgeons formed of iron and marble portions of the tables, bottles, etc., and fiercely attacked the police and troops. The latter fired several volleys. Two of the rioters were killed and over a hundred were wounded, six of them sustaining mortal injuries.

Newspapers Ordered Suspended. A decree has been issued authorizing the civil governor of Lisbon to suspend the newspapers which incite disorder. It is understood that Premier Franco wished King Carlos to issue a decree suspending the constitutional guarantees, but the king, who went to Lisbon expressly to confer with the premier, refused to do so. The judicial authorities are actively searching for the instigators of the attack on the occasion of the return of Premier Franco. The press protests against a decree authorizing the suppression of the various newspapers. A government organ denies the possibility of a change in the cabinet, stating that the ministry will continue to pursue its present policy, cost what it may.

FRANCE IS MUCH RELIEVED

Outbreak in the South Is Checked.—Legislative Relief Is Given.

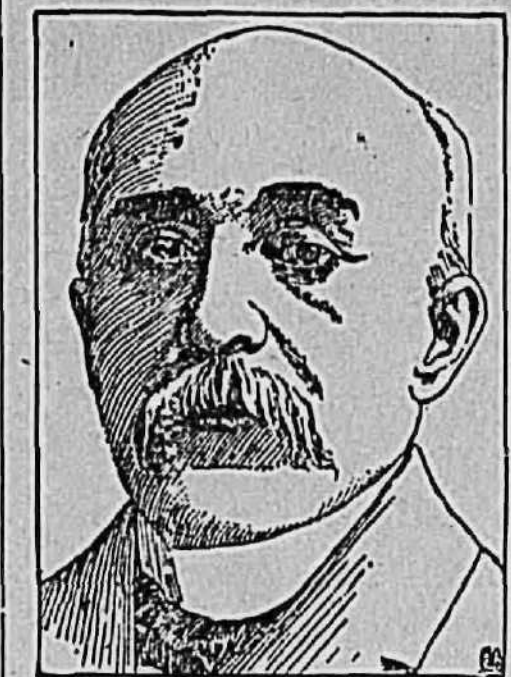

Paris, June 24.—A profound sense of relief pervades the French capital at the check to the outbreak in the south, which is described by ex-Premier Ribot as the worst international crisis in France in the past thirty-seven years. The government now apparently is satisfied that it has the situation well in hand, and that the overwhelming forces of troops garrisoning the whole area effectually will prevent a recurrence of the armed revolt against the central power.

Dispatches represent that a general surface calm prevails, although there are one or two storm centers in isolated districts. There are some evidences, too, of anxiety over possible developments. Both civil and military authorities, however, have made ample preparations for all eventualities. The situation is expected to assume a more peaceful phase this week, as the principal grievances of the wine growers will be removed by the clauses of the wine rhduds bill, which passed the chamber of deputies practically unanimously last week. One of the clauses of this measure requires all growers to make annual declarations of the acreage, cultivation and total quantity of wine produced, and in stock, and whether it is intended for sale or not. The government believes that when in possession of this information it will be in a position to prevent watering or sugaring the wine.

NOW HERE COMES ALBERT
Frenchman for Whom the Vidocq's Search, Visits Clemenceau.

Paris, June 24.—The most interesting event yesterday in connection with the wine growers' revolt was the visit of Marcelin Albert, the leader of the disturbing element in the south of France, to Premier Clemenceau. The report is that he was very contrite and begged to know how he could make amends.

The man for whom the police and troops vainly have been scouring the country for a fortnight appeared without warning at the ministry of the interior. He wore the simple garb of a southern peasant. The cotton shirt, the silk handkerchief around his neck, and the carpet bag in his hand aroused the suspicion of the corps of detectives constantly guarding the premier. But when he had established his identity Albert was admitted to the presence of Clemenceau, with whom he had a fifteen minutes talk.

A semi-official account of the interview says that the premier used extremely strong language, virtually reproaching his visitor with the responsibility of all that has happened in the south—the refusal to pay taxes, the strike, the resignation of the municipality officials and the bloodshed that has occurred—everything in fact. M. Albert is represented as having been overcome with contrition, bursting into tears and asking the premier how he could make amends, to which M. Clemenceau replied: "Give yourself up to the law and use your influence with your countrymen to return to lawful ways."

Subsequently Albert said he was leaving immediately for the south where he intended "to do my duty." This leads to the presumption that an understanding between himself and the premier was reached.

THEY ARE HOT REFORMERS
Mayor and Marshal of Glen Echo. Washington Suburb, Enforcing a Sunday Law to the Hilt.

Washington, June 24.—Mayor Garrett and Marshal Collins, of Glen Echo, a suburb of this city, arrested about ninety people yesterday and last night on the charge of violating the Sunday law. The arrests included street car conductors, peanut vendors, a telephone operator, and other Sunday workers.

Garrett and Collins are the officials whose numerous arrests of automobilists for exceeding the speed limits have created widespread interest.

Receivership Case Dismissed. Chicago, June 24.—Receivership proceedings against the Chicago-New York Air Line company, instituted several weeks ago by Theodore Nemoy, a stockholder, have been dismissed by Judge Windes in the circuit court for want of jurisdiction.

The Demon of Unrest.

We are having the gospel of rest preached to us on every hand, we are told that we are galloping to destruction at our present rate, and yet we constantly accelerate the pace. It is useless to warn, useless to preach, useless to struggle against the tendency of the age. We are possessed for the time being by the demon of unrest. It has us in its power.—Lafayette Pictorial.

Hired to Listen.

The Youth's Companion tells of a busy doctor who had engaged a young assistant and was asked if he really intended to intrust him with his cases. "Oh, no," he replied. "He will listen to the patients, look sympathetic, and report to me in the fewest possible words. A sick woman has to talk just so much, and I haven't time to listen."

CHILD CRIED TO GO HOME; WAS MURDERED

CHILD CHOKED AND HIS NECK
IS BROKEN BY THE ASSASSINS.

Decomposition Had Severed the Head
From the Body When a Searching Party Finally Succeeded in Locating It.

New Orleans, June 24.—Two miles in the interior of a big swamp near this city the headless body of Walter Lamana, an Italian child between 7 and 8 years old, who was kidnaped and held for $5,000 ransom two weeks ago, has been found by the police and vigilantes. He had been strangled to death, according to the confession of one of several Italians held by the police. The boy's neck is supposed to have been broken when he was strangled, causing the head to become separated from the body when decomposition set in. The head was found a short distance from the body.

Five Are Under Arrest. Five Italians, two of them women, are under arrest charged with being accomplices to the murder and extra details of police and deputies are maintaining order in the excited Italian quarter of the city. Seventy armed deputies have been placed on guard at the Orleans parish prison, the strongest in the state, where three of the prisoners are held, and some apprehension has been felt over the safety of two other prisoners who were taken to an adjoining parish. Seldom since the Mafia lynching sixteen years ago has New Orleans been so stirred with threats of violence.

Facts Sweated Out of Him.

The murdered boy was found near St. Rose, about twenty miles from New Orleans. A sweating process wrung a confession from one of the Italian suspects who was taken from his home in St. Rose about midnight and carried into the woods by a combined force of officials and vigilantes who had the search in charge. This man, Ignazio Campiguelano, was kept in the woods an hour, when he confessed, charging four Italians with the murder. He said that about the time of a mass meeting in New Orleans more than a week ago, held for the purpose of prosecuting search for the boy, these men, who were in a vacant house in St. Rose, became frightened and consulted about what to do with the child.

How the Child Was Slain.

The boy was crying, begging to be taken home to his parents, said Campiguelano, and one of the quartette of the kidnapers grabbed the child and strangled him to death to stop his noise. Later two of the kidnapers, he said, came to him carrying the body in a blanket and after threatening him with death if he told took the body into a swamp. Campiguelano, after relating this story, led the police through two miles of swamp where the searchers sometimes waded in water nearly waist deep and at others crawled under tangles of briars. In a shallow pool at the end of this search the body was found in the blanket in a clump of cane.

Woman Knew of the Plot.

Returning to the city the police arrested Nicolina Gebbia, an Italian woman who is alleged to have confessed that she knew of the kidnaping plot from the first, from one of the four kidnapers whom she expected to marry. Campiguelano said that these four were Stefano Monroe, Tony Gendusa, Angelo Caccari, and an Italian named Innocentia. The police said they expected to capture these men within two or three days. The other prisoners directly implicated by the confession are Campiguelano's wife, Frank Gendusa and Leonardo Gebbia.

FAMOUS HOTEL SOLD

Fifth Avenue at New York Is To Be Itized to Make Room for a Skyscraper.

New York, June 24.—The Fifth Avenue hotel, one of the most famous hostleries in this country, has been sold by the Amos A. Eno estate to a syndicate of capitalists headed by Henry Morgenthau, president of the Henry Morgenthau Real Estate company, for $7,250,000. When the lease of the present tenants expires a year from next October the structure will be razed and a modern office building erected on its site. The brown stone building adjoining the hotel on West Twenty-third street and the Madison Square theater on West Twenty-fourth street were included in the purchase.

The hotel was built in 1850 by Eno on the site of an old two-story tavern. Men of note from all over the world have been its headquarters. There the "Amen Corner" was established by the Republican politicians and Thomas O. Platt held sway in the nook he made famous. The movement to nominate Grant for president was started in this hotel.

REDMOND UTTERS A DEFIANCE

Tells John Bull That Ireland Holds
Him and Is Heel to His Rule.

Dublin, June 24.—John E. Redmond delivered an address at Wexford at the ceremony attending the unveiling of a memorial to Wexfordians who fell at the battle of New Ross in 1798. He gave a defiance to British statesmen, saying:

"We tell England that we hate her rule bitterly as did our forefathers when they shed their blood on this spot. We tell her that we are as much rebels to her rule today as our forefathers were in '98. We tell her that she can change that hatred only by granting freedom, and so long as she withholds freedom it will remain merely a question of expediency how and by what means we will strike at the power that holds our country in bondage."

STATUE OF THOS. F. BAYARD

Unveiled at Wilmington, Del.—Ex-President Cleveland Not Able To Be Present—Address Read.

Wilmington, Del., June 24.—In the presence of fully 5,000 persons the ceremonies attendant upon the unveiling of the memorial statue to Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, ex-United States senator, ex-secretary of state, and first ambassador of the United States to the court of St. James, took place in Rockford park. Ex-President Cleveland, who was to have participated in the exercises, was not able to be present by reason of his illness, but he had prepared his address, and it was read by Professor John Bassett Moore, of Columbia university, who was an assistant secretary of state under Bayard.

In his address Cleveland said that mere hint of peril to the nation should cause every loyal citizen "to wish devoutly that, as a guaranty of greater safety, there were in the present generation of our political life more men as wise as distinguished, as bravely devoted to duty as he whose memory we are honoring today." President Roosevelt was represented by Secretary Straus, and sent a letter of regret highly eulogizing Bayard.

MORE DYNAMITE DEVILTRY

Attempt to Blow Up the House of a Little Rock Lawyer's Falls —Fuse Went Out.

Little Rock, Ark., June 24.—An effort was made during the night to blow up the residence of Hon. Ashley Cockrill, ex-city attorney, and prominent lawyer of Little Rock, by dynamite. The fuse failed to burn, or the entire residence would probably have been destroyed. Cockrill found two sticks of dynamite known as sixty-pound pressure, eight inches long, one inch in circumference, on his porch.

Attached to it was a sixty-five-pound pressure cap, and to these was a length of fuse, the end of which was burned. The explosive was capable of demolishing the greater part of a block.

Freight Traffic Reduced.

Lincoln, Neb., June 24.—In fulfillment of a promise made by letter to the state railway commission the Minneapolis and Omaha railroad has filed with that body a new schedule of freight rates for Nebraska to become effective July 5, reducing all such tariffs 15 per cent, as the new maximum freight law requires.

Individuality.

I consider that the work done by the individual in his own individual way is the best thing possible for him. If he has anything to say he will say it in this way.—J. Mac Whirter, R. A., in The Grand Magazine.

Duty Not Burdensome.

There seems to be a popular belief that the term duty comprises all that we most dislike to do; that if it is a duty it must be unpleasant. But look at your duties kindly and they will turn kindly faces to you. Don't worry over them, don't be angry with them, and they will smile at you in return and you will be happy with them. But be careful not to make an idol of duty, for idolatry is wrong. Idols are worshipped, but not understood.

INDICTMENT FOR TATE AND HIS AIDES

TWO MEN LOSE THEIR LIVES IN A POISONOUS WELL.

Third Man Is Overcome Also And the Fourth Refuses Twenty-five Dollars to Go to the Rescue of the Imprisoned Men.

Peoria, Ill., June 24.—The grand jury has decided to vote indictments against Eddie Tate, Eddie Fay and Patsy Flaherty for robbing the school board safe last January and stealing the Dougherty forged scrip. Until more corroborative evidence is produced the jury decided to withhold indictments against certain prominent Peorians who have been mentioned by Tate as having furnished the money for the burglary.

Can't Convict the Big 'Uns.

State's Attorney Scholes believes the story of Tate, in which he implicates former friends of Dougherty, who are wealthy Peorians, but he does not believe at present that convictions could be gained. Warrants for the arrest of Fay and Flaherty will be sent out, and a desperate effort made to locate them and unravel the mystery. During the grand jury hearing Detective Sergeant Conick, of Chicago, and Deputy Warden Sims, of the Joliet penitentiary, positively connected Eddie Tate with the case, and implicated Eddie Fay and Patsy Flaherty as his accomplices.

Peter A. West's Promenade.

Peoria, Ill., June 24.—Peter A. West, a millionaire distiller of Peoria, promenade eight blocks through the business streets of this city, clad only in his wife's kimono and a pair of Japanese slippers. At the end of his journey he received $1, the amount of a wager made by James Brown, a friend, who bet him this amount that he would not wear the flimsy garment from his office to the cleaning establishment, where his wife had asked him to deliver it.

Knew What He Needed.

Peoria, Ill., June 24.—Henry P. Day, a veteran newspaper man and better known as "Daisy" Day, has been adjudged insane and taken to Bartonville asylum. He appeared before Judge Simmons and filed a voluntary petition asking that he be given into the custody of the state.

Mrs. Dan. F. Raum's Devotion.

Peoria, Ill., June 24.—Daniel F. Raum, prominent lawyer of this city, and son of Green B. Raum, ex-commissioner of pensions, has been taken to the penitentiary and sentenced for forgery and embezzlement. Mrs. Raum, who has shown exceeding devotion through her husband's trouble, has determined to take up her residence at Joliet, where she will be able to comfort her husband, pending a movement for his release in the future.

TWO MEN LOSE THEIR LIVES

Gas in a Well Is Fatal—Third Man
Overcome—Fourth Refuses a Reward of $25.

Kewanee, Ill., June 24.—Poisonous gas overcame William G. Glaze, a wealthy farmer, when he lowered himself into a deep well on his farm to recover the body of John Marshall, who had been asphyxiated and fallen fifty feet to the bottom of the well. Frank Holdredge, another farmer, was then lowered with ropes tied around his body, and succeeded in fastening the rope to Glaze's body before he himself lost consciousness. Both were hauled to the top. Glaze was dead, but Holdredge was revived after three hours.

Joseph Milner then succeeded in tying a rope to Marshall's dead body, and refused to accept $25 offered by neighbors to any man who would make the attempt. Dynamite had been used in sinking the well deeper, and gas had formed when Marshall started to work in the morning.

Locusts Capture a Picnic Ground.

Alton, Ill., June 24.—A horde of locusts has settled among the trees of "Hop Hollow," a popular picnic grounds near here, and driven every songbird out of the woods. The hollow has been marked for its songbirds, but all have disappeared under the onslaught of the insects. Crows were the first victims. The locusts are of the variety known as "seventeen-year," and more are coming every day.

Dr. I. L. Eales' Fast.

Belleview, Ill., June 24.—The twenty-second day of total abstinence from food has been completed by Dr. I. L. Eales, who instituted the fast because he thought it would benefit his health.

Emancipated.

There are no hypocrites in hell—the necessity has passed.—Life.

EIGHT RAIL MEN KILLED

Work Train Smashed at Hartford,
Conn.—Two Fatally Hurt—Victims
Breaks His Long Abstinence.

Hartford, Conn., June 24.—Eight workmen were killed and thirty-five injured when a passenger train on the Highland division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad crashed into the rear of a work train that was backing into the city from New Britain. Of the injured two probably will die. Some of the victims within easy reach were dead, but were left while the rescuers tried to extricate the living. In one instance it took an hour and a half to rescue one workman who was pinned between the trucks.

Soon after the wreck, while an investigation was being made to ascertain the whereabouts of the living victims, one man underneath several tons of debris was seen waving a red flag. Some one reached him with a bottle of whisky and gave him a draught. He remarked: "The first drink in twelve years, and God knows I need it."

TWO OFFICERS IN DURE PERIL

Balloon Runs Away with Them and Death Stares at Them in All Sorts of Ways.

Niagara Falls, June 24.—Detective Callinan and Patrolman Roeder faced death for twenty minutes 400 feet up in the air in the basket of a captive balloon. The mechanism which brings the balloon to earth went wrong and the gas bag shot skyward. Roeder, crazed with fear, wanted to jump, but Callinan drew his revolver and threatened to shoot him if he attempted to go over the side of the basket.

A sudden gust of wind carried the balloon out over the rapids of the Niagara river just above the falls and the anchor went tearing through chimneys and roofs. As the last effort was being made to bring the wild bag to earth the basket ran against the high power cables which carry electricity from the power house across the gorge, and the men dropped into the basket just in time to avoid death by electricity. They were finally brought safely to earth.

Negroes Appeal to God.

Louisville, June 24.—An appeal was issued by Rev. L. G. Jordan, of this city, corresponding secretary of the national Afro-American Council, setting apart yesterday as a special day of prayer. The negroes were asked to beseech the Almighty to lend his help in relieving the oppression growing out of discriminating and "Jim Crow" laws.

Mrs. J. Ellen Foster's Son Dead.

New York, June 24.—Emily Foster, a well known newspaper man, is dead of acute kidney trouble. He had held important newspaper positions in Philadelphia, Chicago and Washington, and at the time of his death was a member of the editorial staff of The World. He was a son of Mrs. J. Ellen Foster.

Identifying the Twins.

There were once two fellows in our town that were twin brothers. They looked so much alike that their most intimate friends could not tell them apart. Lem had no teeth and Dave had. Still they looked precisely alike just the same. The only way you could tell them apart was to stick your finger in Lem's mouth, and if he bit you it was Dave.—Judge's Library.

Glorious 4th of July Sale

Saturday, June 29, July 1, 2 and 3

The Glorious Fourth The Nation's Natal Day, is once more at hand, the Star Spangled Banner is flung to the breeze and throughout Uncle Sam's broad domain, the sons and daughters of Columbia will celebrate the 131st birthday of "the home of the brave and the free." Waukegan and Kenosha will not celebrate in the good old-fashioned manner, sad to say, but this store proposes to give a sale that will be a celebration in itself—one that will be long remembered by all who attend. The Fourth is the time when we all "let joy be unconfined" and do our best to make things merry for the rest of Uncle Sam's lads and lassies, both the big and little ones. To be well and appropriately clad so that we may enjoy the day is a part of the celebration, for where is the fun when the "silver cornet band plays" and "the crackers crack," if you are clad in hot and stuffy garments. We have loosened our purse strings in honor of the day. These prices are just hints of the savings to be found in each and every department. There are scores of equally good values that can not be told for lack of space. Come and see them and you will secure the richest hot weather bargains you have ever shared in. Your dollar will secure better results than it ever has since the great American Eagle spread his wings upon it.

RED, WHITE AND BLUE.

O Columbia, the gem of the ocean,
The home of the brave and the free;
The shrine of each patriot's devotion,
A world offers homage to thee!
Thy mandates make heroes assemble,
When liberty's form stands in view,
Thy banners make tyrants tremble,
When borne by the red, white and blue.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER

Oh! say, can you see by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hail'd at the twilight's last gleaming,
Whose broad stripes and bright stars thro' the perilous fight—
O'er the ramparts we watch'd—were so gallantly streaming—
And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof thro' the night that our flag was still there,
Oh! say, does that star-spangled banner still wave
O'er the land of the free and the home of the brave?

DOG RANG THE BELL

Trained Collie Saved Master's Family From Death by Fire.

HE BARKED LONG IN VAIN.

Then Clever Animal Taught to Call the Farm Hands Seized Rope Attached to Bell and Roused Sleepers in Nick of Time.

The wild pealing of the dinner bell, rung just at midnight by a pet collie, saved the family of William Beattie, a prosperous farmer living near Oxford, Pa., from being burned to death.

As it was the warning came just in the nick of time, and they barely es-scaped with their lives. The house was burned to the ground, not a thing being saved.

The fire started about midnight in one of the back rooms of the house, from what cause is not known. The dogs immediately began barking, trying to arouse the family, but no attention was paid to them. Finally the collie, which had been trained to ring the bell for the men to come in from the fields, grasped the cord, and in an instant the entire neighborhood was aroused. By this time, however, the whole end of the house was in flames, and Mr. Beattie had to force his way through the smoke to the room where his two boys were sleeping. They were partially overcome by the smoke, but the brave father fought back the flames as he carried them to safety.

The fire gained such headway that resistance proved useless, and morning found the Beattie home a mass of blackened ruins. The homeless family were taken in by the neighbors, and the faithful collie, who had saved his benefactors, was not forgotten, but became the hero of the hour.

The Beattie home was an old landmark in the neighborhood, being finished throughout with walnut and mahogany from trees that were grown on the estate.

BEAR TIES UP UNION PACIFIC

Telegraphers Had Her Children and She Just Sat Down to Wait.

A mother bear in quest of her young recently tied up the Kemmerer division of the Union Pacific railroad system. Incidentally she kept two operators at Bryan, Wyo., prisoners in their sleeping apartments for hours, while angry trainmen swore at having to stop at a place where stops were not scheduled.

A newly arrived telegrapher invested in two cubs, the offspring of the mother who for days had hunted high and low for her children. As a last hope she peeped into the bunkhouse of the operators. Fortunately they had seen her coming, and by the time she reached the building they had found time to bar the door leading into the station.

The mother bear growled a little, but seemed content to wait, unmoved by the fact that a great railroad needed the assistance of the operators in pushing transcontinental trains through.

Not seeing the semaphore in place a freight train crew started to investigate. They found the operators waiting to be rescued. With the assistance of 800 Greeks who were in work cars up the road a short distance the mother bear was driven off, but not until she had seriously disarranged the schedule of Mr. Harriman's railroad for hundreds of miles east and west.

Blitten by a Mad Cow.

Joseph G. Adams, a wealthy produce merchant of Wethersfield, Conn., is in New York city, being treated for rabies in its most virulent form. Mr. Adams was bitten by a cow. Several days ago the animal became sick, and he determined to give her a hypodermic injection. As he inserted the needle the cow caught his left hand in her teeth, and in less than an hour the arm began to swell. Mr. Adams' family physician advised that he go to New York, and, while the afflicted man has shown some improvement, it will be two weeks before he will be out of danger. The cow was bitten by a mad dog about two months ago.

SPORTING REVIEW.

No International Athletics—Nelson-Britt Bout—Golfer Ball.

THE BATTLER IS CONFIDENT.

Latest Report From Yale Indicates That American and English Collegians Won't Meet This Year—Ball is a Six Time Champion.

It is officially announced at Yale that a letter received a few days ago from Oxford university stated that the challenge of the American universities, Yale and Harvard, for dual games would not be accepted.

The letter says that the athletes in both English universities are very keen on the idea of international sports and are much disappointed that there is a failure to have a meeting this year, but they hope that next spring before the Olympian games in London the men of the four universities may meet and later also meet in the London games.

Battling Nelson must have recovered all his old nerve, for he threatens not only to knock out Jimmy Britt when he meets him in California in July, but as soon as that fuss is over he predicts that he will regain the title from Joe Gans.

If fighters could win their battles with cold type there would be nothing but champions in the pugilistic world. Unfortunately for them, however, it is necessary to face an opponent in the ring and whip him before any medals are handed out. This, however, was made easy by Jack O'Brien's methods, the most difficult feature of all his "victories" being to find a man who would stand for his work.

Nelson recently left Chicago for San Francisco to go into training for his fight with Britt. The Battler is in good condition, though he scales at 145 pounds.

"I'm a little top heavy," he said, "but I will not have any trouble in getting down to the required weight. You know I never had any difficulty in weighing in at 133 pounds, the weight at which I am to fight Britt. They tell me that Jimmy is stronger and cleverer than ever. I hope that is true, for he will need all his strength and cleverness when I get him into the ring again."

John Ball is probably the world's best amateur golfer. His recent victory for the sixth time in the contest for the amateur title of Great Britain, held at St. Andrews, Scotland, was a climax unprecedented and highly sensational. Ball won his first amateur title in 1888. He has a remarkably easy and natural style of play.

Captain Robert C. Folwell of the University of Pennsylvania football team, in an interview dealing with the football prospects and situation at Pennsylvania, has admitted that the Quakers and Yale are trying to get together in a game next fall upon one of the open dates of the season.

There is little doubt that Pennsylvania is anxious for this contest and that Yale men in Philadelphia almost to a man would like to see it played.

It was announced at Cleveland recently that Walter Cox, a well known horseman, had paid $15,000 for the pacer Jerry B., 2:12½, by Argot Wilkes. Jerry B. was owned by the Woody Hill stock farm of Salem, N. Y. He won ten straight races on half mile tracks last season. He is now entered in most of the big pacing stakes of the season.

Held Fast to "Bunk."

The Boston Americans have refused to waive claim to Outfielder "Bunk" Congdon of the Cleveland. The latter club wants to farm him to Columbus.

Walter Brodie.

The Newark (N. J.) club of the Eastern league has waived its claim to Outfielder Walter Brodie, and he will play with Trenton, N. J.

How About McGraw?

Tim Murphey says that Manager-Fleider Jones, Chicago Americans, is the most pronounced umpire batter in the profession.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Modish Shoes of Bronze and Patent Leather—Kimono Tendencies.

A complete departure from previous styles of colonial ties are those of bronze or patent leather with a strap buckling across the base of the tongue. They are to be worn with pale colored summer gowns and will take the place of the white canvas and colored suede shoes that have become too common. Tan leather will be more worn than for years—in fact, shoes of this shade are a whim of the season. Bronze or black stockings, clocked in groups between conventional stripes, are the latest designs in hosiery.

Paris has introduced a dainty summer slipper with a jeweled heel. The jewels are very tiny, almost inconspicuous, but very attractive in outline. Another French fancy for dressy occasions is the graceful colored slipper edged around the top with tiny flowers exactly matching slippers and the gown.

Kimono tendencies are observable all through the scheme of dress. There are kimono sleeves in many of the negligees, while the little coats are fitted out with wide sleeves that fall below the waist line. Not a few of these are gorgeously decorated in the style of the orient.

The illustration shows a very stylish model for a street suit in heavy pongee. It is of the natural color and piped with brown velvet. The short waisted coat gives a modified empire effect that is generally becoming. The skirt is piped after a novel and graceful fashion. JUDIC CHOLLET.

FASHION FORECAST.

Something New in Petticoats—Wistaria Trims Hats in Plume Fashion.

Black lingerie petticoats are new. They are of fine black lawn and lace and are for wear under black voile frocks. These skirts are considered much smarter than those of taffeta.

Exquisite wistaria arranged in plume fashion trims some of the French hats most effectively. Many sprays are used to carry out the idea, and as the flowers cost $3 a spray the flower plumes attain a cost quite equal to that of ostrich plumes.

Princess bloomers to wear in place of skirts are new in the underwear section. Heavy satin ones lined with china silk are $14.50, and those of pongee and mohair are much cheaper.

Quills, as usual, are very good style this season provided you know what to do with them. A simple little straw toque seen the other day had no other trimming, but they must be put on with a French cachet, for there is a great art required in arranging a bunch of these quills.

Beautiful mohairs in browns, greens or grays mixed with white are remarkably soft and make up into stunning costumes for traveling and hard wear.

Fascinating bonnets for the small girls are of soft open straw bent in poke shape. The lingerie hat has by no means lost prestige, and many dainty embroidered or lounced ones are shown for the little tots, also very cunning sunbonnets of plique and linen.

In the illustration the young mother wears a ring dotted batiste combined with flit lace and trimmed with embroidery worked into the material. The small girl is gowned in white handkerchief linen, trimmed with bands of valenciennes lace. The gumps is of embroidered muslin. JUDIC CHOLLET.

MODISTIC MATTERS.

Jaunty Cutaway Coat—New Brown Stockings Are Stunning.

Cutaway coats have pushed their trim and jaunty way to the front and pushed behind them at the same time the Eton and the three-quarter lengths, all save the pouy coat, which shares the joys of popularity with the cutaway.

Golden brown thread stockings with openwork bowknots at the sides are smart to wear with brown pumps.

Brown shoes are easily the leaders in footgear, and some of these shoes are ornamented with cut steel buckles. Leather bows are also a pretty finish for the bronze boot. Some that are laced with wide ribbon have two bows, one at the top and one at the instep.

Champagne color and pale gray gloves are worn with white linen suits. Many of the summer evening gloves are made with lace uppers.

Long light dust coats are made of tinted linen embroidered in white. Pongee or shantung silk is also very good for these coats. Collars and cuffs of green and blue foulard give them a smart touch.

OF BORDERED FOULARD—5566, 5653.

Three piece costumes, consisting of chiffon skirt, lace blouse and coat of brocade, are modish for afternoon wear.

Bordered materials are very much used this season and are to be found in bewildering beauty and variety. The gown illustrated is an exceedingly chic example of ceru foulard bordered with dots of brown. JUDIC CHOLLET.

WHAT TO WEAR.

Time For the Graduation Gown—Attractive Styles For Old Ladies.

The type of girlish gowns classed as graduation frocks is of great interest to many people at this season. Such frocks are not only well adapted to the festivities that mark the close of the school term, but are quite as desirable for any other of the purposes for which an especially smart girlish toilet is required.

All the grandmother styles are reckoned especially attractive today, but no one now thinks of selecting any model without first making an estimate of the requirements, as a builder does before he contracts to build a house. The items are different, the materials filmy textured fabrics and pretty colored trimmings instead of bricks, paint, etc., but the principle is the same.

Embroidered collar and cuff sets in linen and similar fabrics are used on the spring coats. A touch of linen or an entire vest of it is seen even on some heavyweight suits.

Combs are now generally in sets. Back comb and side combs of different sorts are not at all smart.

A saleswoman said that she had sold more dotted brown veils this season than ever before.

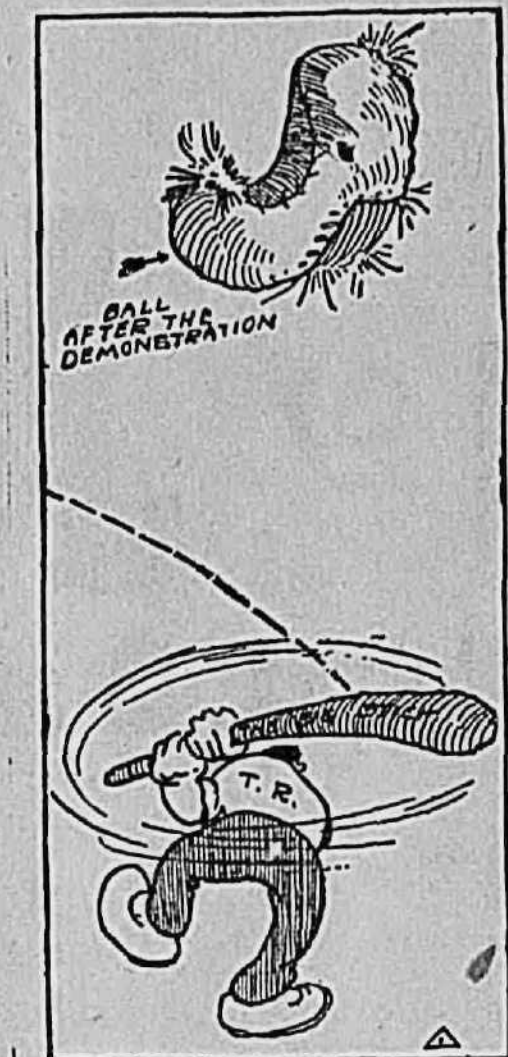

Striped suitings of all sorts are greatly in vogue, but the gray and white ones are especially well liked. Here is a suit of this material with one of the new fitted jackets combined with a plumed skirt. Such a costume is admirable for a number of occasions, such as shopping, walking and traveling. THE ROUNDUP COLUMN.

West Says Baseball Fakirs Should Beware of President Roosevelt.

President Roosevelt, having received gilt adorned season passes for all the leagues and clubs of organized baseball, must now be considered the luckiest man in all America. How all the thirty-third degree fans envy him! Think of having so many ball passes that a double entry system of book-keeping, assisted by two private secretaries, is necessary to keep track of them.

But there is one class of people who will have to be careful if the president decides to visit many games. I refer to the scores of "baseball fakirs," who are far more in need of castigation than all the so called "nature fakirs" in three or four hemispheres. There are fakirs among the lists of players, managers and magnates that the game can well spare. While they are not "nature fakirs," they are natural fakirs—that is, they don't have to train for the job.

By the way, the president is said to be very fond of baseball and actually intends to play the game at Oyster Bay, N. Y., this summer. If he ever lands the "big stick" on an ordinary baseball, the spheroid will look like the mule that drank a can of nitroglycerin and then tried to kick a hole in a pile of cobblestones.

Since the expose of the fake fights on the Pacific coast and elsewhere efforts have been made to form an organization to protect the boxing game from the fakirs. James Coffroth, the San Francisco promoter, has taken the initiative in the matter and has written to the various promoters and clubs throughout the country in an effort to get their cooperation in forming a club that will work with prominent writers in driving the fakirs out of business. The plan is to keep tab on any boxer who may engage in a fake bout and keep the clubs throughout the country posted as to his standing.—News Item.

The foregoing choice bit causes one to ask: "Who will keep the suggested organization in the straight and narrow path? Was not Coffroth a shining light in the notorious San Francisco 'light trust'? Is there not an old Latin query, Quis custodiet custodes, meaning 'Who will guard the guards?'"

Or is the underlying principle of the projected board of purifiers to the effect that organized graft is more virtuous than unorganized graft?

Several very crafty modern prize fighters should remember that when a man is under a cloud we are prone to see him in a bad light.

A Slab City girl says that every time her dressmaker doesn't give her a fit she has one herself.

He laughs last who is slow to see the joke. If you don't believe this, try your pet story on Gus Ruhlin or Tom Sharkey.

ONLY A MAN.

No, it is not correct to state that all the philosophers are dead. Is there not a prominent baseball manager who says, "It is better to forgive than to walk in the middle of the street to keep bricks from falling on you?" WILLIE WEST.

Bert Barber of Elton, Wis., says: "I have only taken four doses of your kidney and bladder pills and they have done for me more than any other medicine has ever done. I am still taking the pills as I want a perfect cure. Mr. Barber refers to De Witt's Kidney and Bladder Pills, which are unequalled for backache, weak kidneys, inflammation of the bladder and all urinary troubles. A weeks treatment for 25 cents. Sold by J. H. Swan.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Don't Know It.

How To Find Out.

Fill a bottle or common glass with your water and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. If it stains your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too frequent desire to pass it or pain in the back is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

What to Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in 50¢ and $1. sizes. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful discovery and a book that tells more about it, both sent absolutely free by mail.

Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper.

Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

THE DELUGE

By DAVID GRAHAM PHILLIPS, Author of "THE COST" and "THE DELUGE"

I issued a clear statement of the situation; I showed in minute detail how the people standing together under the leadership of the honest men of property could easily force the big bandits to consent to an honest, just, rock-founded, iron-built reconstruction. My statement appeared in all the morning papers throughout the land. Turn back to it; read it. You will say that I was right. Well—

Toward two o'clock Inspector Crawford came into my private office, escorted by Joe. I saw in Joe's seamed, green-gray face that some new danger had arisen. "You've got to get out of this," said he. "The mob in front of our place fills the three streets. It's made up of crowds turned away from the suspended banks."

I remembered the sullen faces and the hisses as I entered the office that morning earlier than usual. My windows were closed to keep out the street noises; but now that my mind was up from the work in which I had been absorbed, I could hear the sounds of many voices, even through the thick plate glass.

"We've got 200 policemen here," said the inspector. "Five hundred more are on the way. But—really, Mr. Blacklock, unless we can get you away, there'll be serious trouble. Those damn newspapers! Every one of them denounced you this morning, and the people are in a fury against you."

I went toward the door. "Hold on, Matt," cried Joe, springing at me and seizing me. "Where are you going?"

"To tell them what I think of them," replied I, sweeping him aside. For my blood was up, and I was enraged against the poor cowardly fools.

"For God's sake don't show yourself!" he begged. "If you don't care for your own life, think of the rest of us. We've fixed a route through buildings and under streets up to Broadway. Your electric is waiting for you there."

"It won't do," I said. "I'll face 'em—it's the only way."

I went to the window, and was about to throw up one of the sunblinds for a look at them; Crawford stopped me. "They'll stone the building and then storm it," said he. "You must go at once, by the route we've arranged."

"Even if you tell them I'm gone, they won't believe it," replied I.

"We can look out for that," said Joe, eager to save me, and caring nothing about consequences to himself. But I had unsettled the inspector.

"Send for my electric to come down here," said I. "I'll go out alone and get in it and drive away."

"That'll never do!" cried Joe.

But the inspector said: "You're right, Mr. Blacklock. It's a bare chance. You may take 'em by surprise. Again, some fellow may yell and throw a stone and—" He did not need to finish.

Joe looked wildly at me. "You mustn't do it, Matt!" he exclaimed. "You'll precipitate a riot, Crawford, if you permit this."

But the inspector was telephoning for my electric. Then he went into the adjoining room, where he commanded a view of the entrance. Silence between Joe and me until he returned.

"The electric is coming down the street," said he.

I rose. "Good," said I. "I'm ready." "Wait until the other police get here," advised Crawford.

"If the mob is in the temper you describe," said I, "the less that's done to irritate it the better. I must go out as if I hadn't a suspicion of danger."

The inspector eyed me with an expression that was highly flattering to my vanity.

"I'll go with you," said Joe, starting up from his stupor.

"No," I replied. "You and the other fellows can take the underground route, if it's necessary."

"It won't be necessary," put in the inspector. "As soon as I'm rid of you and have my additional force, I'll clear the streets. He went to the door. "Wait, Mr. Blacklock, until I've had time to get out to my men."

Perhaps ten seconds after he disappeared I, without further words, put on my hat, lit a cigar, shook Joe's wet, trembling hand, left in it my private keys and the memorandum of the combination of my private vault. Then I sallied forth.

I had always had a ravenous appetite for excitement, and I had been in many a tight place; but for the first time there seemed to me to be an equilibrium between my internal energy and the outside situation. As I stepped from my street door and glanced about me, I had no feeling of danger. The whole situation seemed so simple. There stood the electric, just across the narrow stretch of sidewalk; there were the 200 police, under Crawford's orders, scattered everywhere through the crowd, and good-naturedly jostling and pushing to create distraction. Without haste, I got into my machine. I calmly met the gaze of those thousands, quiet as so many barrels of gunpowder before the explosion. The chauffeur turned the machine.

"Go slow," I called to him. "You might hurt somebody."

But he had his orders from the inspector. He suddenly darted ahead at full speed. The mob scattered in every direction, and we were in Broadway, bound up town full tilt, before I or the mob realized what he was about.

I called to him to slow down. He paid not the slightest attention. I leaned from the window and looked up at him. It was not my chauffeur; it was a man who had the unmistakable but indescribable marks of the plain-clothes policeman.

"Where are you going?" I shouted. "You'll find out when we arrive," he shouted back, grinning.

I settled myself and waited—what else was there to do? Soon I guessed we were headed for the pier off which my yacht was anchored. As we dashed on to it, I saw that it was filled with police, both in uniform and in plain clothes. I descended. A detective sergeant stepped up to me. "We are here to help you to your yacht," he explained. "You wouldn't be safe anywhere in New York—no more would the place that harbored you."

"GO SLOW," I CALLED TO HIM. "YOU MIGHT HURT SOMEBODY."

He had both common sense and force on his side. I got into the launch. Four detective sergeants accompanied me and went aboard with me. "Go ahead," said one of them to my captain. He looked at me for orders.

"We are in the hands of our guests," said I. "Let them have their way."

We steamed down the bay and out to sea.

From Maine to Texas the cry rose and swelled: "Blacklock is responsible! What does it matter whether he lied or told the truth? See the results of his crusade! He ought to be pilloried! He ought to be killed! He is the enemy of the human race. He has almost plunged the whole civilized world into bankruptcy and civil war. And they turned eagerly to the very autocrats who had been oppressing them. 'You have the genius for finance and industry. Save us!'"

If you did not know, you could guess how those patriots with the "genius for finance and industry" responded. When they had done, when their programme was in effect, Langdon, Melville and Updegraff were the three richest men in the country, and as powerful as Octavius, Antony and Lepidus after Phillips. They had saddled upon the reorganized finance and industry of the nation heavier taxes than ever, and a vaster and more expensive and more luxurious army of their parasites.

The people had risen for financial and industrial freedom; they had paid its fearful price; then, in senseless panic and terror, they flung it away. I have read that one of the inscriptions on Apollo's temple at Delphi was: "Man, the fool of the farce." Truly, the gods must have created us for their amusement; and when Olympus falls, they ring up the curtain on some such screaming comedy as was that. It "makes the fancy chuckle, whilst the heart doth ache."

CHAPTER XXXIV.

"BLACK MATT'S" TRIUMPH.

My enemies caused it to be widely believed that "Wild Week" was my deliberate contrivance for the sole purpose of enriching myself. Thus they got me a reputation for almost superhuman daring, for satanic astuteness at cold-blooded calculation. I do not deserve the admiration and respect that my success-worshipping fellow countrymen lay at my feet. True, I did greatly enrich myself; but not until the Monday after Wild Week.

Not until I had pondered on men and events with the assistance of the newspapers my detective protectors and jailers permitted to be brought aboard—not until the last hope of turning Wild Week to the immediate public advantage had sputtered out like a lost man's last match, did I think of benefiting myself, of seizing the opportunity to strengthen myself for the future. On Monday morning I said to Sgt. Mulholland: "I want to go ashore at once and send some telegrams."

The sergeant is one of the detective bureau's "dress-suit men." He is by nature phlegmatic and cynical. His experience has put over that a veneer of weary politeness. We had become great friends during our enforced inseparable companionship. For Joe, who looked on me somewhat as a mother looks on a brilliant but erratic son, had, as I soon discovered, elaborated a wonderful programme for have not yet become intelligent and competent enough to be free, then and not until then did I abandon the hopeless struggle.

And I did not go over to the bandits; I simply resumed my own neglected personal affairs and made Wild Week at least a personal triumph.

There is nothing of the spectacular in my make-up. I have no belief in the value of martyrdom and martyrdom. Causes are not won—and in my humble opinion never have been won—in the graveyards. Alive and afoot and armed, and true to my cause, I am the dreaded menace to systematic and respectable robbery. What possible good could have come of mobs killing me and the bandits dividing my estate?

But why should I seek to justify myself? I care not a rap for the opinion of my fellow men. They sought my life when they should have been hailing me as a savior; now, they look up to me because they falsely believe me guilty of an honesty.

My guards expected to be recalled on Tuesday. But Melville heard what Crawford had done about me, and straightway used his influence to have me detained until the new grip of the old gang was secure. Saturday afternoon we put in at Newport for the daily communication with the shore. When the launch returned, Mulholland brought the papers to me, lounging aft in a mass of cushions under the awning. "We are going ashore," said he. "The order has come."

I had a sudden sense of loneliness. "I'll take you down to New York," said I. "I prefer to land my guests where I shipped them."

As we steamed slowly westward I read the papers. The country was rapidly readjusting itself, was returning to the conditions before the upheaval. The "financiers"—the same old gang, except for a few of the weaker brethren ruined and a few strong outsiders, who had slipped in during the confusion—were employing all the old, familiar devices for deceiving and robbing the people. The upset milking-stool was righted, and the milk was sealed again in a bushy, the good old cow standing without so much as a shake of horn or switch of tail. "Mulholland," said I, "what do you think of this business of living?"

"I'll tell you, Mr. Blacklock," said he. "I used to fuss and fret a good deal about it. But I don't any more. I've got a house up in the Bronx, and a bit of land round it. And there's Mrs. Mulholland and four little Mulhollands and me—that's my country and my party and my religion. The rest is off my beat, and I don't give a damn for it. I don't care which fakir gets to be president, or which swindler gets to be rich. Everything works out somehow, and the best any man can do is to mind his own business."

"Mulholland—Mrs. Mulholland—four little Mulhollands," said I, reflectively. "That's about as much as one man could attend to properly. And—you are 'on the level,' aren't you?"

"Some say honesty's the best policy," replied he. "Some say it isn't. I don't know, and I don't care, whether it is or it isn't. It's my policy. And we six seem to have got along on it so far."

I sent my "guests" ashore the next morning.

"No, I'll stay aboard," said I to Mulholland, as he stood aside for me to precede him down the gangway from the launch. I went into the watch-pocket of my trousers and drew out the folded ten $1,000-bills I always carried—it was a habit formed in my youthful, gambling days. I handed him one of the bills. He hesitated.

"For the four little Mulhollands," I urged.

He put it in his pocket. I watched him and his men depart with a heavy heart. I felt alone, horribly alone, without a tie or an interest. Some of the morning papers spoke respectfully of me as one of the strong men who had ridden the flood and had been landed by it on the heights of wealth and power. Admiration and envy lurked even in sneers at my "unscrupulous plotting." Since I had wealth, plenty of wealth, I did not need character. Of what use was character in such a world except as a commodity to exchange for wealth? "Any orders, sir?" interrupted my captain.

I looked round that vast and vivid scene of sea and land activities. I looked along the city's titanic skyline—the mighty fortresses of trade and commerce piercing the heavens and flinging to the wind their black banners of defiance. I felt that I was under the walls of hell itself.

"To get away from this," replied I to the waiting captain. "Go back down the Sound—to Dawn Hill."

Yes, I would go to the peaceful, soothing country, to my dogs and horses and those faithful servants bound to me by our common love for the same animals. "Men to cross swords with, to amuse oneself with," I mused; "but dogs and horses to live with." I pictured myself at the kennels—the joyful uproar the instant instinct warned the dogs of my coming; how they would leap and bark and tremble in a very ecstasy of delight as I stood among them; how jealous all the others would be, as I selected one to caress.

"Send her ahead as fast as she'll go," I called to the captain.

"Here, now!" interrupted his father, "you've a plate full o' food before ye."

NOTES FROM MEADOWBROOK FARM

The best farm hand is the farmer himself.

It's easy to be shiftless, but it doesn't pay.

Raise poultry whether you like it or not and learn to like it.

Fresh, clean water is essential to hogs as it is to other stock.

See that the collars fit the horses, and keep them soft by proper care.

The best time to dock lambs is when they are about two weeks old.

Keep ahead of the weeds or it will be a tall end race with them all season.

Feed grain to the ewes in pasture if extra growth on the lambs is desired.

Regularity in the care of farm animals has much to do with obtaining the best results.

Never let the horse stand when heated without blanketing no matter how warm the weather.

It takes more skill to market a crop profitably than it does to grow it, at least often times it does.

Broadcast rape in the corn after the last cultivation and it will afford good pasturage in the fall after the corn is cut.

You may not be able to afford a new sanitary stable but you can afford white wash which will make the present stable more sanitary.

The sore places on your horse should be kept clean by washing every day with carbolic water and then dressed with a little good tar ointment.

Be sure that the new trees you set this spring have no label wires left about the trunks, as they will cut off the circulation of the tree and perhaps kill it.

Turpentine soaked rags fastened to the horse manger will do much toward curing the animal of cough or distemper, as he will have to inhale the fumes of the turpentine while he feeds.

The lazy hen, it has been said, bears the same relation to the henry that the lazy man does in the community. The only difference is that the former does make good potpie, while the lazy man is good for nothing.

Oats cut in the mill and cured as hay makes the finest kind of hay. One farmer says that last season his hay crop being short he cut three acres of oats for hay and found that the stock ate it more greedily than any other hay, and that it proved exceptionally good for his milk cows.

A successful asparagus grower says he keeps rust out of his asparagus and saves cultivation, by sowing two bushels of cow-peas to the acre at the first cultivation after the cutting season is over. The peas keep down the weeds and shade the ground, but do not interfere with the growth of the asparagus. The pea and asparagus stalks are left on the ground until the following spring and then burned off.

There is no doubt that there are many portions of the country which at the present time are practically undeveloped agriculturally which have a great future before them, but do not let the alluring advertisements of such localities turn your head. Remember that the man who has written them has something he wants to sell, and that he may be just stretching it a little. Go slow in considering a change of location. Don't sell the old farm and rush off to the new location. Investigate first. Inspect the land personally, and then don't make the move until after the sober second thought.

Nearly all sheep have worms in the liver, but they do no harm unless they are in such numbers as to cause sickness and death. The treatment for sheep thus afflicted is a tonic, made up as follows: Linseed meal, or coarse wheat flour, 40 pounds; powdered anise or gentian, and sulphate of oxide of iron, four pounds each; half a pint daily to each sheep. In all treatment it is necessary to remove the affected animals to a perfectly dry pasture or salt marsh, or either of which the parasites will perish. To turn them on a fresh pasture that is not dry, is to stock it with the pest.

Neglected agriculture marks the decline of a nation.

It's the chickens you raise not the chickens you hatch which count.

Serve prompt notice on the potato bug to move on—into the kerosene can.

It spoils the grind stone to let it stand in the trough partly filled with water.

Use pea ground for late potatoes, peppers, tomatoes, or any other suitable crop.

Clean out the nest boxes occasionally and burn the straw. It helps keep down the lice.

Extra rush in farm work should not be allowed to interfere with the regular milking hour.

Cultivate the corn through June and July but don't run too deep. Severed roots limit the capacity of the plant to mature its ears.

The fine delicate aroma of freshly-made butter is quickly lost and for this reason it should be gotten to the consumer as quickly as possible.

The price of eggs keeps up which makes the outlook for the poultry business good. It seems at the present time as if there was little danger of overdoing the poultry business.

How much did your carelessness contribute to the following figures: Two million two hundred and twenty thousand nine hundred and ninety-five cattle, 3,342,769 sheep and 2,681,168 swine were lost by disease and exposure in the United States in the year ending March 31, 1907.

Every effort towards more cleanly dairying is commendable and for this reason we take pleasure in telling of the plan of the patrons of the Arcata creamery in California, and which is worthy of emulation in other dairying communities. An agreement has been entered into among the patrons that each will deposit a dollar in the bank every time he cashes his check from the creamery, this money to constitute a fund which will be awarded by a committee at the end of the year to the three men who have made the best showing in sanitary conditions during that period.

Experiments have shown that 60 per cent. of all the feed a dairy cow can eat is appropriated to sustain her body. If a cow is fed to 70 per cent. of her capacity only ten per cent. of the ration can be used for milk production. Liberal feeding is necessary but its profitable extent depends on the individual animal. Successful dairying depends fully as much on the feeder as on the cow. A proportion of two-fifths concentrates to three-fifths roughage is widely and successfully used. Of course feed stuffs must be chosen to balance well and with an eye to their market value.

Take a "corn ear census" on your farm this summer. It takes but little time to walk through the rows and count the stalks that have no ears, and find what percentage they bear to the fruitful stalks. One farmer, who took a census last year, found that the barren stalks averaged about 20 in 100. It is a good thing to know. It means a loss of one-fifth in the yield of corn. Now it is claimed that these barren stalks will fertilize the ears of the other stalks and so breed more and more barrenness in the years to come. If this is true, it would pay us well to go through our corn just before it silks and cut off the tassels of all the barren stalks.

During the trying heat of the summer remember that hog cholera is a germ disease, and spread by bacteria. Contagion can spread from one animal to another and from herd to herd only by these minute organisms. They are carried in every way—by swine, by the clothes of persons, by vehicles, feed, dogs, birds and by streams. Poor care may weaken the hog's constitution and make him more susceptible to disease than he would be otherwise. Diseases may be prevented largely through disinfection. Bacteria are preserved in filth; hence, entire cleanliness will go far to prevent disease. Hogs should have dry, well-ventilated quarters, with the sleeping room raised a little above the others. Feeding and drinking places must be clean and the water pure.

The plans for the national corn exposition at Chicago, October 5 to 9, are going forward. There will be six premiums for White Dent and six for Yellow Dent. There will also be liberal prizes for the best ten ears exhibited of the leading pure bred varieties in the United States; Boone County White, Iowa Silver Mine, Improved Leaming, Fride of Illinois, Champion White, Pearl, and many others to be named later. There will also be special prizes for the women who may exhibit any variety of either the yellow or white classes of corn and special prizes for the best ten ears of the yellow white, and red Flint. These latter are designed to encourage the improvement and growth of corn in the sections where the Dent corn is not extensively grown. There will be prizes for boys and girls, prizes for the different localities state prizes, and a number of other special prizes. If you grow any exceptionally fine corn this year, by all means exhibit it.

My Hair Ran Away

Don't have a falling out with your hair. It might leave you! Then what? That would mean thin, scraggly, uneven, rough hair. Keep your hair at home! Fasten it tightly to your scalp! You can easily do it with Ayer's Hair Vigor. It is something more than a simple hair dressing. It is a hair medicine, a hair tonic, a hair food.

The best kind of a testimonial—"Sold for over sixty years."

Made by J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Also manufacturers of SASSAPARILLA PILLS, CHERRY PECTORAL.
